GILBERT'S PLAN STIRS GERMANY

Government Considering Movement To Establish Definite Reparations Amount

Berlin, Dec. 17—The recommendations of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for preparations payments that the sum which Germany must pay to the allies be fixed at a definite figure and that the Dawes plan be modified if not abolished entirely created a profound sensation throughout Germany today.

Gilbert's report was called "the turning point in preparations policy" and a step toward revision of the Dawes plan.

The government already is considering the advisability of starting a movement to establish the definite amount which Germany must pay in reparations. In official circles there is a feeling that this part of the report was written with the sanction of Germany's creditors.

The friendly tone of the report caused prices to advance on the boerse.

Government Warned

Nationalist newspapers, however, call the recommendations a "doubtful gift," leaving the Dawes plan burden without the benefit of foreign currency.

Agent Gilbert again warned the German government against extravagance and urged the utmost economy in public expenditures. In concluding his report Agent Gilbert said that the experience of the past few years have shown that the reparations problem cannot be solved until Germany is given a specific sum to pay on her own responsibility without outside interference.

The report takes issue with certain American banks who claim that German government foreign loans take priority in payment over the Dawes plan obligations.

"LAME DUCK" BILL WILL BE REPORTED

Due Before House Before Christmas Holidays; Principle Indorsed

Washington, Dec. 17 — Determined that a constitutional amendment to abolish "lame duck" sessions of Congress shall get a hearing in the present session, the House Committee on Elections of the President and Congress today announced plans to report a bill to the House before the Christmas holidays.

Reverend White, Republican of Kansas, chairman, said the committee had indorsed the principle of the measure and would hold a hearing on Monday, after which a bill probably would be reported.

Five resolutions will be before the committee, which is expected to indorse White's measure amending the constitution to provide for inauguration of the president on Jan. 20 instead of March 4, and the convening of Congress every year on Jan. 4 instead of the first week in December.

Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, author of the idea, has introduced a new resolution in the Senate providing that presidents shall be inaugurated on Jan. 2 after election and senators and representatives shall take office on Jan. 15 after election.

Under the present system a man may serve in Congress for 13 months after he has been defeated at the polls.

The Norris proposal has passed the Senate three times but a vote in the House has been blocked.

EXPECT EARLY JURY REPORT IN ZILLICK TRIAL

Final Pleas of State and Defense Made at Morning Session

CASE TAKEN AT NOON

Governor's Office Brands Report of Investigation as Incorrect

(Special to The Star)

Bucyrus, Dec. 17—An early report from the jury that will decide the fate of Harry Zillick, Toledo, on trial for bank robbery was predicted at the courthouse at noon today shortly after the jury retired with the case at 11:40 o'clock.

Final pleas by chiefs of state and defense counsel, Chester Mack and John Hackett, both of Toledo, respectively and the charge to the jury by Judge Walter Wright were on the court program this morning.

Attorney's arguments in the case started late yesterday after the state had placed four rebuttal witnesses on the stand. Special Prosecutor Edward Myers was the first to address the jury and was followed by Attorney Clarence U. Ahl of the defense.

State's Play

In presenting the rebuttal testimony, the state endeavored to show that Zillick has had connection with other crimes before his name was associated with the alleged participants in the $175,000 Galion Commercial Savings Bank holdup on June 28 last, for which he is now standing trial.

Other testimony given by state's rebuttal witnesses revealed that two detectives, Tom Schwarner and W. C. Gordon, had been subpenaed to testify in the trial but had not been called to the witness stand.

Zillick's trial is the second to grow out of the Galion holdup. Wilbur Hand, Toledo, and a friend of Zillick was the first defendant. He was convicted and sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary for 10 to 25 years. He is at freedom now, however, under $25,000 bond awaiting disposition of an appeal in the district court of appeals.

Arthur Hand, younger brother of Wilbur, is the third man to be arrested in the case. He is being held in the Crawford County Jail awaiting Chicago, Dec. 17—Three men were injured and several women were reported hurt when a powerful bomb was exploded in the hallway of the Haymarket Hotel today.

Windows within a radius of two blocks were shattered.

Police believe the blast heralds a new outbreak of gang warfare for control of the city's vice interests. On the second floor of the wrecked building, Police Capt. Matthew Homer discovered what appeared to be gambling equipment.

Al Ferger, hotel clerk, and John Sweeney and John Boyce, guests, were the men injured. They were at the head of the stairway on the second floor when the bomb exploded.

The residents were most enthusiastic, making inquiries at newspaper offices and government buildings as to the exact date of the flier's arrival.

A tremendous reception is planned, as Colonel Lindbergh is one of Panama's two popular American heroes. The other is Jack Dempsey.

ENDS INITIAL INQUIRY INTO HEARST CHARGE

Reed Committee Adjourns Without Setting Another Hearing Date

Washington, Dec. 17—The first phase of the Senate's investigation concerning the Mexican documents published in the Hearst newspapers ended today.

After a brief session this morning, the Reed investigating committee adjourned without setting another date for a public hearing. Senator Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, the chairman, stated however, that another meeting probably will be held next week.

The Senate's efforts to obtain the record of telegrams exchanged between the Mexican government and its financial agent, Arturo M. Elias, in New York, during 1926 were frustrated today when James E. Bresnahan, Western Union Telegraph official, informed the Reed committee that all company records for that year have been destroyed.

It was during the year 1926 that the documents published in the Hearst newspapers asserted large sums of

Virginian Pitched Bodily From Plane Careening in Air, Lives to Tell of It

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 17—Richard R. Fellers, manager of the Martinsburg, W. Va. airport, was pitched bodily from the cockpit of a careening airplane several thousand feet above the Blue Ridge and lived to tell about it today.

Ransom H. Stephens of Newmarket, Va., wealthy engineer and grandson of Alexander Stephens, vice president of the Confederacy, also was thrown out of the plane. His body hurtled through the air to crash lifeless and broken on the rocky slopes of Nelson County.

The airplane in which Fellers and Stephens were passengers was piloted by Charles A. Masson of the Maryland National Guard.

Masson said the plane was caught in the vortex of what he described as a "cyclonic disturbance" and got out of control. The force of the air current was so violent that both passengers were pitched out.

Stephens was thrown clear. Fellers' body struck a wing. His threshing arms gripped a strut and held. As soon as Masson got the plane under control, Fellers worked his way cautiously back into the cockpit.

Stephens and Fellers had been surveying the Shenandoah Valley for airport locations and were enroute to Richmond to report to Governor Byrd.

ORDERS MINERS OFF PROPERTY

Unemployed Union Workers Must Vacate Company Premises, Court Rules

Columbus, Dec. 17—All unemployed union miners and families of miners Co. and the Atlantic Contracting Co. employed by the Clarkson Coal Mining in Belmont County, except those at Clarkson mine No. 2, must vacate the premises of the companies by April 1, according to a decision handed down here today by Federal Judge Benson W. Hough. A hundre miners and their families are effected by the order.

The decision of the court also affected those unemployed union miners who remain in occupancy of the houses belonging to the Monroe Coal Co.

The court in handing down its decision quoted the preliminary and permanent injunction granted to the companies last summer.

The injunction ruled that the miners were forbidden to trespass on mining property of the three companies and from interferring with the operation of the mines.

The companies praying for mandatory injunction to surrender possession of the residences on mining properties and asked that they be made to vacate the same, are upheld, the court said.

The court in handing down the decision said that the companies mines are located in open country and that there is no other way to house the new employes that were hired at the mines, and therefore interfere with the operation of the mines, in direct violation of the injunctions issued.

FIVE MEN RELEASED FROM CITY PRISON

Group Freed When Mansfield Authorities Fail in Identification

After spending two nights and a day in the city prison, five men arrested Thursday night for investigation in connection with a ticket sale held in Mansfield last week, were released this morning when Mansfield authorities were satisfied that they were not the men who worked in that city.

The five had conducted a sale of tickets in this city for a dance to be put on by the Betsy Ross Auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans, to be held on Dec. 26 and had intended to leave the city yesterday, according to L. S. Johnson, manager of the crew.

Suspicions held by the police that some of the methods used by the men in the sale of tickets, which was carried on entirely by telephone, were not all that they should be, could not be proved and the men were released today. Members of the Betsy Ross organization bore out statements made by Johnson that they had fulfilled their part of the contract.

The men who conducted the sale in Mansfield were being sought by officials of that city on John Doe affidavits filed by officers of the American Legion, who said the men had represented the dance would be given by their organization. Johnson told the Mansfield authorities yesterday that the sale in that city was conducted by Al Kayda, who he said bore a reputation for being dishonest.

BEHIND THE BARS

Velma West To Spend Holiday Season in Painesville Jail

Painesville, Dec. 17—Velma West, youthful pleasure-loving flapper and accused hammer-slayer of her husband, Thomas Edward West, will spend the gay holiday season behind jail bars, it was indicated today.

Attorneys for the 21-year-old blonde, who is alleged to have beaten her husband to death at their Perry, Ohio, home, five miles east of here, on Dec. 6, because he objected to her desire to attend a bridge party in Cleveland, have apparently abandoned proposed habeas corpus proceedings to obtain their fair client's release on bond, pending action of the Lake County Grand Jury.

REMUS, STATE CASES RESTED

Closing Arguments Are Limited to Four Hours for Each Side

Courthouse, Cincinnati, Dec. 17—Both state and defense at the trial of George Remus for wife-murder finally rested their respective cases this afternoon.

They had rested their cases on Thursday but on a court ruling they reopened for the testimony of the alienists.

Closing arguments to the jury were to follow, each side to be confined to four hours.

Whether Nero or Julius Caesar were lunatics were things Remus wanted to know today when he rigorously cross examined Dr. Edward Armitage Baber, an alienist, in an attempt to prove that he, Remus, was "transitorally" insane when he shot and killed his wife, Imogene, on Oct. 6. Dr. Baber had testified that the defendant was sane the moment he fired the shot and is sane now.

In his dramatic courtroom manner, Remus shot questions at the alienist, finally bringing the subject around to lunacy, a term which the doctor said he did not recognize medically.

NEGRO TAKES WATCH OF FELLOW PRISONER

Pleads Guilty To Stealing Timepiece from Sleeping Cell Mate

It was shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and all was peaceful and quiet around police headquarters and Night Sergeant Reardon had just settled down for a bit of rest when his reverie was suddenly broken by the sounds of a conflict in City Prison.

Rushing to the scene of the noise, the sergeant found two colored "sleepers" engaged in a struggle. One was being held against the wall by the other who was vainly attempting to extract something from the pockets of the other. When the two had been pried apart by the police officer, it developed that one of the men, who gave the name of John Jones, had stolen a gold watch from the pocket of his companion while he slept.

A charge of petit larceny was placed against Jones when the watch was found in his possession and he was locked in a cell. When arraigned before Judge Martin in municipal court this morning, he pleaded guilty and was given a sentence of 60 days in the county jail and a fine of $100 and costs. All of which was suspended on condition that he leave the city at once. He left.

SIXTH AIR MAIL ROUTE STARTED IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Dec. 17 — A Fairchild cabin monoplane, carrying Mayor John D. Marshall of Cleveland as a passenger, and a load of mail, was scheduled to take off from Brook Park here shortly after noon today for Buffalo, inaugurating the Cleveland and Buffalo air mail service.

Establishment of the Cleveland-Buffalo leg marked Cleveland's sixth air mail line.

ROAD SYSTEM APPROVED HERE

Marion County Officials Satisfied with Highway Department's Opportunity Plan

Marion County officials are well satisfied with the system used by the State Highway Department in apportioning its expenditures in different sections of the state.

This was made known today by County Surveyor C. R. Leavens, who said that he will not attend a conference of northern Ohio surveyors to be held in Cleveland Jan. 9 to consider objections raised in some localities against the state highway department's methods.

Protests come chiefly from Cuyahoga County and other large centers of population in northern and northeastern Ohio.

It is asserted that although northern Ohio pays a much larger percentage of the road fund through automobile license and gas taxes, southern Ohio counties, where traffic is light and population and automobile ownership much smaller, are receiving far greater attention in the maintenance of highways.

Seek Equalization

The state highway department has been asked by protestants to equalize expenditure of these funds.

Leavens says that in his opinion the system in use is right and fair.

"Southern Ohio counties and counties in other sections which are unable to finance their own road work should be helped by the other localities," he declared. "It is only through this plan that a complete state road system can be improved and maintained."

If all the money that Cleveland and Cuyahoga county pay into the road fund should be used only in that district, it would be possible to "pave the high-

SECOND SCHOOL AT QUEBEC IN RUINS

One Hundred and Forty-Two Boys Rescued from Flames

Quebec, Dec. 17—The St. John Berchman Boarding School was a mass of ruins today, the second educational institution to be razed by fire here in the last 48 hours. There were 142 boys asleep in the boarding school when the fire started in the basement last night, but all of them were on the first floor of the building and escaped uninjured.

With the terrible disaster at the Hospice St. Charles Wednesday night still fresh in their minds, 300 men besieged the boarding house when the fire started, breaking windows and fighting to gain admittance in order to rescue the youngsters. The men in charge of the school led the boys to safety in an orderly manner, however, and no one was injured.

The boys, all between the ages of five and 12, were still in their night attire when taken out of the school. They were housed in a nearby building.

The school was controlled by the Good Shepherd Sisters who had charge of the Hospice, St. Charles. Fifty lives were lost when the Hospice St. Charles, an orphan asylum, was burned to the ground on Wednesday night.

A 60-mile gale increased the danger in last night's fire. The boarding school was in ruins by midnight.

In a building opposite the school were housed more than 200 children who had been saved from Wednesday night's fire. This building burst into flames at 11 o'clock, but the children were removed in time by devoted Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

WOMAN DIES IN FIRE WHICH DESTROYS HOTEL

Boston, Dec. 17—All night search of the ice-coated ruins of the Elliott family hotel in Roxbury failed to reveal more bodies and the toll of the fire that swept the five-story structure stood today at one dead—Mrs. Lena Blisk—and four guests and four firemen injured.

A. J. BERRY GETS DROP ON MEN LOOTING HOME

Manager of Ohio Associated Telephone Co. Surprises Burglars

WARNED BY ALARM BELL

Sam Postell, Marion, Melvin Gibson, Columbus, in City Prison

Armed with a revolver and a determination to put a stop to the regular visits of the robbers, A. J. Berry, local manager of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., stepped into a new role last night when, singlehanded, he captured two burglars who had broken into the home of his father-in-law, W. W. Reading, 170 Sharp-st. Mr. Reading is in California.

Following a similar visit to the home by burglars three weeks ago, when a room on the second floor, in which members of the family had placed valuable articles, was broken into and a typewriter taken, Mr. Berry had caused a burglary alarm to be installed in the home with the alarm bell placed in his own home at 353 Cherry-st.

Alarms Sounds

Shortly before 7 o'clock last night the alarm sounded and after notifying the police, Mr. Berry obtained a revolver and with his brother, V. A. Berry, who was armed with a shotgun, went to the Reading home which they found dark and showing no signs of life, but where they took up their guard pending the arrival of police.

With the arrival of the police, Mr. Berry and his brother with the police unlocked the door. The upstairs had been searched with no signs of the burglars and a search was starting on the first floor of the house when Mr. Berry chanced to walk into a front room and there he found standing silently, two men.

Drawing his revolver on the two, he ordered them to throw up their hands and called to the others. They were searched and then taken to police headquarters where they gave the names of Sam Postell, 37, of 200 Sharp-st and Melvin Gibson, 31, of Columbus.

Break Glass

The men had gained an entrance to the house by breaking a piece of glass out of a rear window and then reaching through released a catch. Since the method of getting in the house was the same as that used by the burglars who visited the place three weeks ago, it is the belief of the police that the two are the same who visited the place at that time.

A charge of burglary will be placed against the two men it was said at police headquarters this morning.

AWARDED CAR AGENCY IN CRAWFORD COUNTY

Haberman Chevrolet Co. Is Named Distributor, with Offices at Galion

Appointment of the Haberman Chevrolet Co. of Marion as agent and distributor of Chevrolet motor cars in Crawford County was announced today at the company's office, 203-209 S. Main-st.

Under this arrangement, which will become effective at once, the local concern's territory will include Marion County and all of Crawford County with exception of the city of Bucyrus, where a separate agency is maintained.

The Crawford County agency will be operated under the name of the Galion Chevrolet Co., which consists of the same stockholders as those in the Haberman company.

Incorporation papers were issued at Columbus yesterday for both companies. Stock in the Haberman company consists of 250 shares of no par common and the Galion company, 100 shares of the same class.

Both are close corporations, all of the stock being held by three members of the Haberman family who are also the executive officers. They are Fred Haberman Jr., president and general manager; Fred Haberman Sr., vice president and Mrs. Margaret Harberman, secretary and treasurer.

Fred Haberman, Jr., will have supervision over the business in the entire territory. He stated today that negotiations are now under way for establishing an agency headquarters in Galion.

The additional territory was assigned to the Haberman company chiefly as the result of its record of sales and service in Marion County. During the last year, it was stated, the business handled in Marion County was more than double the record of any previous year.

The company now has two sub-dealers in Crawford County, one at Crestline and one at New Washington. In Marion County there are five sub-dealers, Charles Hudnall, Meeker; LaRue Chevrolet Sales, LaRue; Central Garage, Prospect; Waldo Garage, Waldo and T. J. Hill, Caledonia.

Real estate activities ran somewhat above the average of the last few months, 29 transfers of property being recorded.

Local building and loan companies made all but nine of the loans recorded this week. Mortgages issued to these companies amounted to $82,875, all but one being on city properties. Last week the loan company mortgages totalled $32,250.

The largest mortgage of the week was given as security for a loan amounting to $15,000 on a city property. Included among the farm loans was one for $5,000 made by the Federal Land Bank. It was secured by a mortgage on land located in Marion and Crawford Counties.

Pilgrimage to Bethlehem

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. GEORGE E. GROVES
Pastor, Central Christian Church

Nearly 2000 years ago on the hills of Judea the shepherds heard the song of the angels and said, "Let us go even to Bethlehem." They immediately directed their footsteps to the little village where was "born in the city of David a Saviour who is Christ the Lord." Thus in the night time was made the first pilgrimage to the birthplace of the world's Redeemer. Millions through the centuries, from far distant countries, have made long journeys to that sacred spot. At this season of the year, in thought and imagination, the Christian world will make its annual pilgrimage to Bethlehem, will enter again the lowly stable, and will stand in quiet wonderment before the manger which contained the One who was to be called "Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father and the Prince of Peace."

A Pilgrimage That Strengthens Faith

The journey to Bethlehem is made because there is none other to whom we can go that can satisfy the deeper needs and longings of the human soul. The humble shepherds returned from that visit, glorifying and praising God and faced the future with a new faith and a new purpose. Today when we are tempted to try to quench our spiritual thirst at the fountains of this world we need to make the journey to Him who stands supreme, in knowledge, life, purity, power and undying love.

A Pilgrimage That Leads To One Who Enables the Commonplace

The delegation of humble shepherds was the first to receive the "King of Kings" and "Lord of Lords." He was born in a stable; cradled in a manger, worked in a carpenter shop; gave Himself to service for others with nowhere to lay His head; crucified, and buried in a borrowed tomb. Amid the commonplace things He lived, loved, toiled and died. At this season the people of all nations will follow the roads of thought and memory that lead to His earthly life and birthplace. He stood for the real and eternal things in life: truth, faith, kindness, fellowship, the things of the spirit.

A Pilgrimage That Put a New Meaning in Life

When the shepherds returned from that journey they had a new vision of life. In Him they could understand the message of the prophets and the words of the angels' song. At this Christmas time with its evergreens, festivities and celebrations may we enjoy these but go further and make our journey back to His birthplace, His teaching and His example. In making this pilgrimage we will find the solution of life's problems and inspiration for the doing of every worthy task and above all One who has conquered death and promised life eternal.

LVERSTOTT DAIRY AS NEW EQUIPMENT

Work Completed This Week on Improvement Program

l work was completed this week allation of new equipment at lverstott dairy, located three east of the city, establishing 's recognized as one of the most modern and efficient plants of its kind in this section of Ohio.

With its present stock and equipment, the Holverstott dairy produces and pasteurizes all of the milk which it markets to customers in the city of Marion. Its output now averages 100 gallons daily.

There are few such completely equipped plants in Central Ohio, W. H. Holverstott, head of the dairy firm, stated today. Nearly all farm dairies, he says, market only raw milk, selling it as a rule to pasteurizing plants in nearby cities.

Construction of a modern, sanitary dairy barn, measuring 34 by 100 feet, was the final step in providing the dairy with facilities for handling every branch of its business. The barn, with cocrete foundation and flooring, has stall space for 46 cattle. At present there are 39 Jersey, Guernsey and Holstein cows, all of high-grade dairy type, supplying the milk and cream marketed by the dairy.

$10,000 Expended

The barn and four other buildings used in operating the business, together with equipment, represent an investment of $10,000, Mr. Holverstott states.

Value of the cattle, including the 39 furnishing the dairy with milk, 16 calves which are housed in what is known as the "hospital and maternity stable," and other stock held in reserve is estimated at $6,500.

The dairy barn and other buildings are lighted by electricity and the pasteurizing plant is operated by electrical motive power. To provide the place with electricity, lines were run to the Holverstott farm from the main power line on the Harding Highway.

The Holverstott farm of 300 acres, located on the Patten-pk, is used almost entirely for operation of the dairy business, producing practically all feed for the cattle.

Interesting History

The farm has an interesting history, having been in the possession of the Holverstott family ever since the first land grants were made in this section by the government. There have been but three owners, the first being Henry Holverstott, who acquired the land in 1828. From him it passed to his son and then to his grandson, W. H. Holverstott, the present owner.

W. H. Holverstott is president of the Citizens' Building & Loan Co. here and although re maintains close supervision over management of the dairy, he leaves details of its operation to his three nephews, Gale, Fred and Marshall Holverstott, who are also his partners in ownership of the business.

The pasteurizing plant is operated by Clyde Davis, a practical dairyman of long experience.

In announcing completion of the dairy plant today, Mr. Holverstott stated that it is open at all times for inspection of visitors.

TRIP TO EUROPE IS BIG CONTEST PRIZE

National Oratorical Event Open to Marion Students; Hailed by Coolidge

in the number of newspapers which are sponsoring and conducting the contest. The newspaper sponsors of the contest in the United States for 1928 number 53. The largest number of papers heretofore conducting the contest was 26. Owing to the tremendous growth in the number of newspapers participating and the resulting increase in the intensity with which the contest will be conducted in all of the states, it has been necessary to increase the zones into which the country is divided from 7 to 8. The winner of the championship in each zone has a place in the national finals, which will be held in Washington on May 25. All eight of the participants in the national finals are given as a prize a 10-weeks' tour of England, France, Italy, Germany, Holland and Belgium with all expenses paid.

The winner of the championship of the United States will compete in the International Finals to be held in Washington on Oct. 13, at which time there will be one speaker for each of the seven nations.

Schools Make Selection

The national winner of the national championship secures a handsome silver loving cup as an additional trophy and the winner of the International championship secures another and larger loving cup. The International championship trophy for 1928 will be donated by the group of Canadian newspapers sponsoring the project in the Dominion of Cauda. In addition, each newspaper offers local prizes which will be announced later.

The procedure of the contest is relatively simple. Each school handles the selection of its own representative. The representative of the different schools in a given newspaper territory, compete among themselves in accordance with a fixed schedule. By a process of elimination, the contestants in a given newspaper territory are reduced to seven. These seven compete for the championship of that newspaper's territory. The champion of each newsaper territory competes in one of the eight zone meetings, which represents semi-final meetings for the entire nation. These meetings will be held on May 11, in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Raleigh, Troy, N. Y., Chicago, Kansas City and Oklahoma City.

Zone Contest at Troy

The Ohio champion will compete at Troy, N. Y., against the spokesmen for Maine, Michigan, upper New York, Indiana, central and western Massachusetts.

The contestants must deal with one of the following subjects: "The Development of the Constitution" or "The Present Significance of the Constitution." Each speaker is allowed only 10 minutes. The general schedule for the 1928 contest, which, however, is subject to minor modification at the discretion of each local contest manager, is as follows:

First selections (within each school) by March 16.

District finals by March 30.

Newspaper semi-finals by April 20.

Newspaper finals by April 27.

National semi-finals by May 11.

National finals (Washington), by May 25.

Sail for Europe on S. S. "America" June 30.

International finals (Washington), grand climax, by Oct. 13.

Schools desiring to enroll in the contest should communicate with the Oratorical Contest Manager of The Marion Star, who will supply additional instructions as to procedure. It is not necessary for a school or an individual to pay any fee to participate in the contest, which is a newspaper contribution toward better citizenship and a better understanding between nations.

Complimented By President

The contest, which began as a national project in 1924, has, from the outset, enjoyed the cooperation of leading educators and publicists. President Coolidge in addressing one of its major meetings, described it as "the greatest competition of its kind ever held in the world." The national finals are judged by five members of the United States Supreme Court. Judges for the International finals are multilinguists. In the International phase of the contest, each speaker uses his native tongue. In the 1028 contest, although there are five different linguistic groups represented; there will be only four languages used, namely, English, German, French and Spanish. This is due to the fact that the contestants in Japan will use English throughout their contest.

The committee for the contest in the United States is made up of the following: Frank B. Noyes, Washington Star; Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times; Walter A. Strong, Chicago Daily News; William L. McLean, Jr., Philadelphia Bulletin; George B. Longan, Kansas City Star and Harry Chandler, Los Angeles Times.

Newspapers Are Sponsors

The sponsors of the contest in the United States are as follows: New York Times, Washington Star, Milwaukee Journal, Minneapolis Daily Star, Des Moines Evening Tribune, Kansas City Star, Chicago Daily News, Seattle Times, Philadelphia Bulletin, Atlanta Constitution, Birmingham Age-Herald, Los Angeles Times, Louisville Courier-Journal, Arkansas Democrat, Oklahoma City Oklahoman, Albuquerque Journal, Houston Post-Dispatch, Fort Worth Record-Telegram, Pocatello Tribune, Great Falls Tribune, Fargo Forum, Omaha Bee-News, Indiana State Bar Association, Worcester Telegram-Gazette, Springfield Republican, Burlington Free Press, Charleston W. Va., Gazette, Richmond Times-Dispatch, Raleigh News and Observer, Jacksonville Journal, Canton Repository, Marion Star, Steubenville Herald-Star, East Liverpool Review, Salem News, Grand Rapids Press, Flint Daily Journal, Ann Arbor Times-News, Jackson Citizen-Patriot, Kalamazoo Gazette, Muskegon Chronicle, Saginaw News, Bay City Times, Salt Lake City Tribune, Troy Record, Portland Press-Herald, Des Moines Capital, Louisville Times, Oklahoma Times, Portland Express, Montgomery Advertiser, Birmingham News, and Springfield Union.

The subjects to be discussed in the different nations in the 1028 contest follow: United States: Subjects given above; England: "The British Empire" or "England's Contribution to Constitutional Government;" France: "The French Governmental System," or "French Culture as a World Asset;" Germany: "The German Government Today' or "Germany and the Future;" Canada: "The Canadian Government System;" Mexico: "Bolivar and the Latin-American Republics" or "The Mexican Govenmental System;" Japan: "Japan and the Orient" or "The Japanese Government."

MOTHER WILL MAKE VISIT WITH LINDY

Plans To Spend Christmas Holidays in Mexican Capital

Mexico City, Dec. 17—With his mother coming down to visit him over Christmas, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, today looked forward to a doubly joyful stay at the Mexican capital.

The flying colonel learned of his mother's decision in a long-distance telephone conversation with her yesterday. Mrs. Lindbergh had previously declined to visit her son.

After the holidays are over, America's flying ambassador of good will will continue on his tour of the Central American countries, the inhabitants of which are already planning to do him great honors when he arrives.

For a time it appeared that Lindbergh would be drawn into a controversy concerning bull-fights, but today all doubt in the question was dispelled by the young man himself. He has been invited to attend a bull-fight tomorrow. Telegrams from organizations in the United States have urged him not to attend.

But Lindbergh, feeling that he is the sole judge in such matters has let it be known that he will attend. According to the flier himself, this happens to be a case of doing in Rome as the Romans do. Besides, as he said:

"I believe that Mexicans are perfectly capable of selecting their own sports."

Colonel Lindbergh was elated today over his flight late yesterday over Mexico City in a Mexican army plane. And Mexican army pilots were still talking of his remarkable skill at handin a plane. Once aloft, Lindbergh cavorted in perfect aerial acrobatic style, zooming and looping about in the city while critical observers below were loud in their praises.

Will Rogers—Critic

Virginia To Blame for Washington Rupert Hughes' Pictures in Volumes Tossed on Smouldering Scandal Fire, Cowboy Says

BY WILL ROGERS

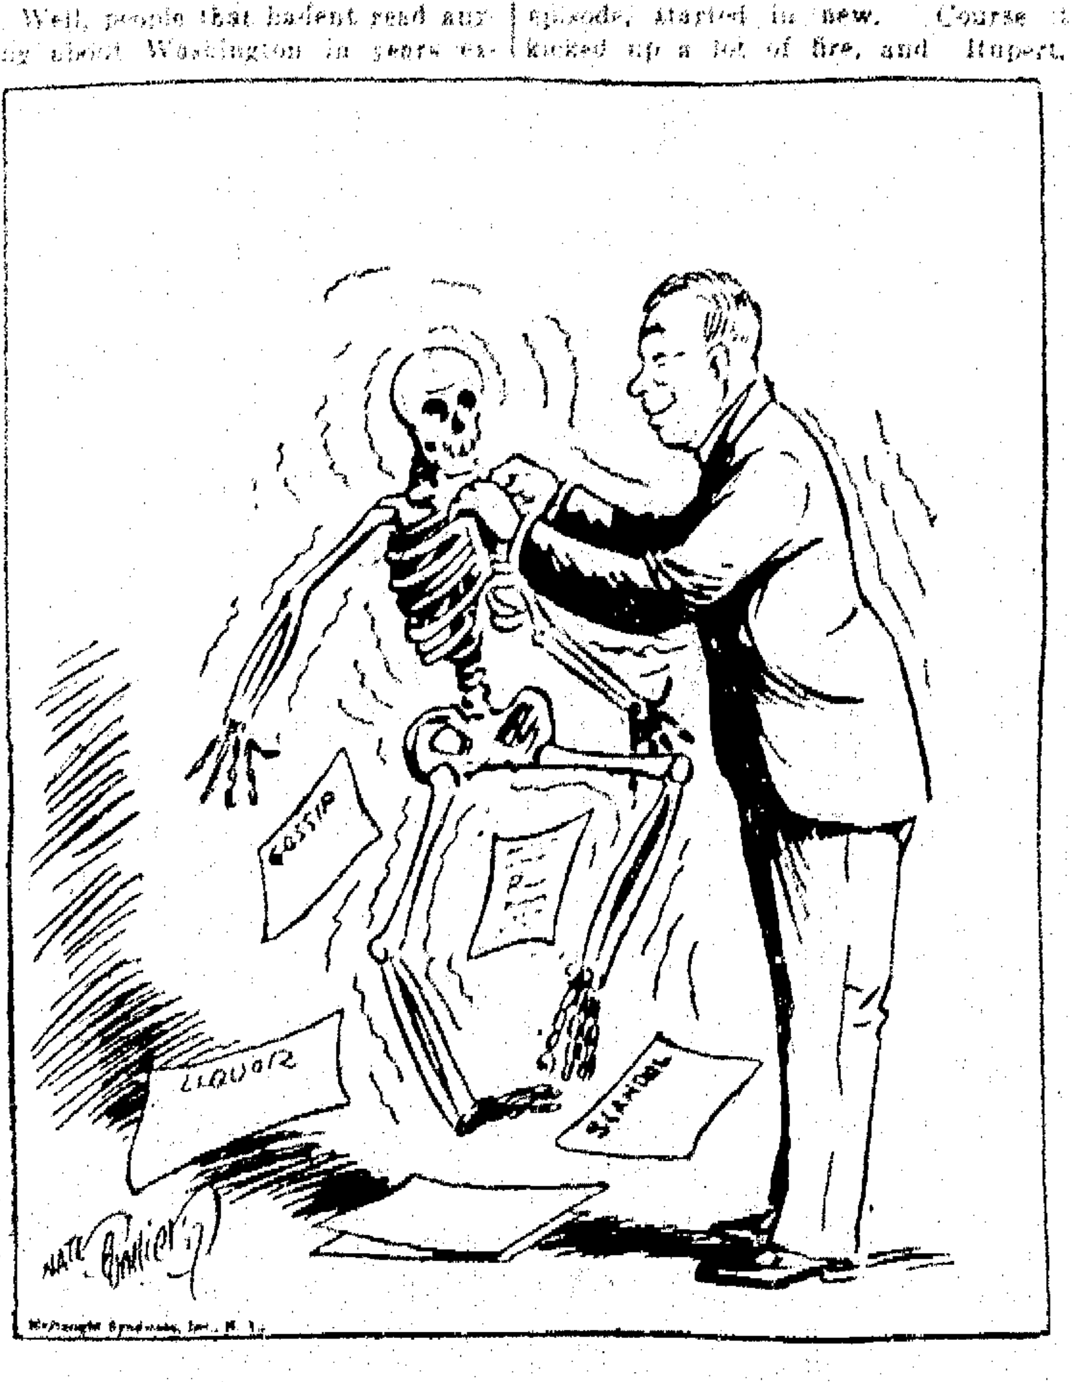
I TRIED about everything to make a living, outside of work. All kinds of writing and play acting, and trying to appear foolish and trying to appear smart. That is, I have tried about everything but Book reviewing. That is Critic.

No, it has never been my nature to criticize anything. I always just figured that the people doing it were doing their best. Now Book writing I just figured they felt like they ought to write a Book so they just up and wrote it, and they couldn't be blamed for they were doing the best they could. But I am now going to take up this Critics business serious. When the boys write their bound pamphlets why I am the local Heywood Broun that will knock 'em back to their Newspaper game, or maybe boost 'em on if they are bad enough: to writing Scenarios. Now Rupert Hughes, an old friend of mine, that is he used to say hello to me when we used to work at the Goldwyn Studio. He was the Original Eminent Author, and the only one who remained Eminent after his first picture. Now Rupert is just about one of our greatest Humorists in America. He is right in a class with Cobb, and Larder. But like Cobb he don't like this funny man business, so they now write stories and try and put in enough plot that it will drown the humor out. They try not to be funny, for they know people look on any one being funny like they don't know much. So you really can't blame them for trying to live down the humor business. But hear either one of them at a Banquet when he knows it's not going to be published in book or Magazine form and the old humor will crop right out.

Rolled George Over

Well, about a year or more ago Rupert you remember wrote a book exposing, (well not exactly exposing) but kinder giving Washingtons other side. They say every man has two sides and Rupert is the first one to roll Washington over.

Well it kicked up quite a furor. The Daughters of the Revolution started revoluting. Most of the organization had traced kinship back to George, and they wanted him to stay like McGuffy had put him. But Rupert's humor cropped out and he dug out all this other and put it into print, that is it was already in print but not all the scandalousness was printed together. (It had to be in print somewhere or Rupert couldent have found it. Well, people that hadent read anything about Washington in years except the Cherry Tree and hatchet episode, started in new. Course it kicked up a lot of fire, and Rupert, seeing he had the blaze started, certainly never had been accused of being such a poor showman that he didnt know when to throw on more wood when he saw the blaze going good, so the rascal up and hits 'em with the other volume, and its this second volume that I am starting in my career as a critic on. You would have thought if you read the first that he had aired about all their was, but as Jolson says, "You aint heard nothin yet." If he dont go and get that skeelton out of that Virginia closet and shake another volume out of it.



Rupert shook a whole book out of that Skeleton.

Environment Cause

Liquor, and cards and Dances. Wel you just go to read it. Its a good thing he run for President when he did. Of course I lay the whole thing of Washington's downfall to environment. It was those Virginians, and you know they havent changed much. Why right there in that Shenandoah Valley it's just full of blue grass, and race horses, and you know race horses aint meant for no good, and where there is Blue Grass there is sure to be devilment. Look at Lexington, Ky. Why there they will bet on a horse race or a poker game quicker than the rest of America will go to church.

Then that valley of the Shenandoah is full of caves. Now what does a respectible community want with caves? You dont see any caves around Claremore, Oklahoma, do you? No sir, everything is above ground. And look at the corn they raise in Virginia, and everybody knows they feed their horses oats. Where does the corn go, Eh? I ask you. You Roanoke, I am asking.

No Record 'Tall

So you see, its Virginia. That what it was. If he had run with Oklahoma you couldent have ever dug up [illegible] on him. What Virginia done anyhow? All they could do was write Constitutions, and Declarations, and have Presidents, and make Hickory smoked ham.

Who couldent write Constitutions? You give me all the ideas of other Nations and a good dictionary and I will show you some Constitution. And Presidents, they had to get 'em from Virginia, because it was the only [illegible] ful state.

What I want to know is why Hughes keeps picking on Washington. He couldent do all that devilment alone he had to have fellows with him. Why dont Hughes write about Jefferson, I bet he could dig up some scandal on him. You know what I think it is. I think it's politics. Hughes is a Democrat. Thats about what's the matter with him, and he wont tell things on Jefferson because he was a Democrat. Why dont he tell about any number of other men? What about Monroe? And Doctrine? And Mason? And Dixon? And all those linesmen. How about Grant; he couldent a been smoking all the time.

Picking On G. O. P.

Its politics, that's whats doing it. He is trying to show that the Republicans were not decent from the start. Now no man can do two volumes worth of scandal. Why dont he hop on Andy Jackson? There's a lad that never missed a bet or a drink while in the White House but he was a Democrat, thats why Hughes is trying to protect him. I hate to say this, but I believe that Rupert is paid by the Clem Shaver organization. If they can show that the Reppublicans started their cussedness under Washington why it will prove that it is heriditary and cant be stopped that they are just naturally honory from birth. The whole thing is nothing but Political propaganda. Why do they have to drag a man's fair name in to make Politics? I think if a man can do things and get away with 'em for a hundred or two years that you ought to give him credit. If we couldent find him out in that time, why let him go. And if Hughes keeps on putting out these Volumes slamming the Republican Party, Why I am going to do a little research scandal work and tell something on the Democrats. I'll show em some dirt.

Father of 12, Out of Work, Seeking Employment Here

CHRISTMAS morning with its delightful thrills that is going to be enjoyed by thousands of Marion children, is going to be just the same as any other morning of the year, except that it will be colder and more bitter than mornings in the summer, to 12 little folks who live with their parents at 251 N. Grand-av, unless some kind Santa Claus makes it possible to be otherwise by providing work for their daddy.

Big and strong and willing to work, the father has tramped the streets of the city for days in a vain effort to find work, while the mother and 12 children have struggled along with the aid of neighbors and others in an effort to get enough to eat and keep the house warm.

The family was discovered by members of a church society who are asking that anyone having work will be doing a worthwhile service if they will get in touch with the father.

ways there with gold," the Marion County surveyor says.

And while this was being done, Southern Ohio autoists would be wallowing in the mud, he states.

Explains Plan

The state system, Leavens says, is based on the same principles as the one used in improving and maintaining county roads. In the county work, roads in the poorer townships are kept up to a large extent by money received from taxpayers in other sections of greater wealth.

The meeting of county surveyors called for considering the protests is to be held in connection with the annual National Road Show, which will take place in Cleveland the week of Jan. 9.

Leavens and several other county officials will attend the exposition. Representatives of local factories will also be present and it is expected that several concerns will have equipment on display.

DETAILED REPORT OF LAND FILED HERE

Submitted by Homer E. Johnson, Marion County Title Examiner

A detailed report was filed in the court of common pleas today giving a record of the title to land located east of the city and formerly owned by Miss Josephine Dietrick, deceased. It was submitted by Homer E. Johnson, official title examiner for Marion County.

Registration of the title was ordered by the local court following application filed in the suit of George W. Bolander, trustee for Jackson Bolander, against Jackson Bolander and others.

The proceeding was started when negotiations for sale of the land to a real estate company for platting purposes disclosed that title to the property was in doubt.

The examiner reports that seven-twelfths of the property belongs to the Bolander family and five-twelfths to the Dietricks.

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE DENIES REPORT

Columbus, Dec. 17—Officials at the office of Gov. Vic Donahey today characterized as "incorrect" a report that the governor had dispatched an investigator into Crawford County in connection with the prosecution of persons accused of participation in the Commercial Savings Bank robbery at Galion last summer, when $175,000 in cash and securities were stolen.

The only action the governor has taken in the matter, it was stated, was to instruct C. H. Sisson, the governor's personal investigator, to write to Prosecuting Attorney Louis H. Kreiter, of Crawford County, for the facts concerning the arrest of Arthur Hand, brother of Wilbur Hand, who was convicted of participating in the robbery.

Writes to Kreiter

Complying with the governor's request, Sisson wrote to Kreiter, stating that a number of appeals on behalf of Arthur Hand had reached the governor.

Kreiter replied, stating that Arthur, unable to give $50,000 bond fixed by the examining magistrate, was being held in the county jail at Bucyrus awaiting action by the grand jury. Kreiter said that at least three persons who were in the Galion bank at the time of the robbery, identified Arthur Hand as being one of the robbers.

Kreiter promised to furnish the governor's office with a full report on the situation. This report, it was stated, has not yet been received by the governor.

No other investigation in the matter was being made or contemplated, it was announced at the governor's office.

Wilbur Hand recently visited the governor's office and voiced an appeal for liberation of his brother, stating that neither himself nor his brother had anything to do with the robbery.

The program planned for the entombment ceremonies, which will take place at 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, will probably be made public Monday, it was stated today. These arrangements are in charge of relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Harding.

FREDERICKSON ASKS SUPPORT FOR WILLIS

Warner Suggests Gubernatorial Endorsement to Members of State Committee

Columbus, Dec. 17—Members of the Republican State Central Committee today were planning to meet at the Neil House here soon after January, and formulate a policy for the coming presidential campaign.

Fred W. Warner, Marion, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and Charles R. Frederickson, Coshocton, chairman of the Republican state executive Committee, were on record today favoring endorsement by Ohio G. O. P. leaders of U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis as the Buckeye state's "favorite son" candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Frederickson, who managed the last Ohio Republican gubernatorial and U. S. senatorial campaigns, issued a letter to committeemen suggesting that the state central committee endorse the presidential candidacy of Willis.

The committee, Frederickson stated, "should be ready now to declare our allegiance to the movement to nominate Willis for president." I am willing to go even further than Frederickson and indorse a candidate for governor at that time," declared Warner.

money were transmitted to Elias from Mexico City for ostensible distribution.

Bresnahan was the first witness called today when the Senate committee resumed its investigation into the documents published in the Hearst newspapers. The several subpenas issued for the telegraph records covered primarily 1926, and also asked for messages on various dates in 1927.

The destruction of the company's records were up to and including the month of November in 1926, Bresnahan told the committee at the outset. It was early in August of that year that the documents published in the Hearst newspapers assert more than a million dollars was transmitted to Elias for propaganda purposes in the United States.

The records for December, 1926, and all of 1927 are intact, Bresnahan said, reading to the committee a list of messages exchanged between Elias and Mexico City. Some of them were in code, he said. The texts were not divulged.

Bresnahan reported his search for messages sent Elias by men named "Saenz" and "Pani" had been unsuccessful. He said he could find no record of such messages.

Bresnahan next said he could find no records of a purported transfer of money from Mexico to Elias in March of this year. He likewise said he could find no records of money transfers from Mexico to the National City Bank, the Guaranty Trust Co, or J. P. Morgan & Co., which might have gone later to Elias in March of this year.

"The message transferring money would not be addressed to Mr. Elias or to the bank," Bresnahan explained. "It would be addressed to our officials with instructions to pay over the money to Elias or the bank. Our files show no record of any transfer of money from Mexico to Mr. Elias or any New York bank in March, 1927."

Congresswoman from Massachusetts Acts After Lindy's Flight

Washington, Dec. 17—The triumphant air voyage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to Mexico City was signalized here today by the opening of a congressional move to abolish the embargo on shipment of airplanes to Mexico.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican congresswoman from Massachusetts, began the campaign with an appeal to the State Department.

The proposal is backed by the United States Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and many other organizations, she said.

Parents of Girl Declare Mrs. Kresge's Accusations False

Natick, Mass., Dec. 17—Denial to charges made in New York Supreme Court by counsel for Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, linking the name of their daughter with Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire merchant who gave $500,000 to the Anti-Saloon League, were made today by Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Fish, parents of Gladys Fish, Natick High School honor student and former Boston University secretarial school undergraduate.

Both parents defended Kresge, who met their daughter at a Methodist Church supper in New York. Despite her beauty, they said Gladys was "an old maid."

Best in the World.

It is evident that Rear Admiral William A. Moffet, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, is not one of those who believe in hiding light under a bushel. In his annual report to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, this week, he unhesitatingly says that this country's naval aviation is the best in the world.

This kind of talk is so at variance with a lot we have heard and seen in print regarding American backwardness in aviation development that it's positively refreshing, especially so since we have been given so many evidences that it is not merely talk; since we know of so many splendid achievements in support of it.

In passenger transportation we are decidedly weak compared with many other countries, a number of them far lesser ones, but in two departments of aviation we have achieved splendidly. One of them is our air mail service and the other is the development we have made in producing machines and fliers of quality. There can be no question of the latter proposition in the light of the achievements of American fliers in American machines. The list is a superb one from the polar flight of Byrd, on to the one matchless flight of Lindbergh across the Atlantic and up to that ended this week by the "Lone Eagle" in Mexico City.

Admiral Moffet reports that the navy now has 580 pilots, increases having been made last year in both commissioned and enlisted fliers. Twenty-six were killed in the aviation service as the result of 224 crashes which occurred during 141,166 flights covering 103,391 hours in the air by naval fliers.

The navy has kept pace in general with the aviation development of the world, the admiral says. "The last year has been one of achievement. There is no more need to say that aviation is in its infucy or aeronautics are in the experimental stages."

While praising the effects of changes in organization resulting from aviation investigations in the past, Admiral Moffet concludes that "one of the most important factors contributing to the striking advancement in aviation recorded in the last year has been the freedom from repeated agitation and investigation." Our greatest need, he says, is for continued opportunity to devote undivided attention to aeronautic development.

There has been an insistent urging in recent years that our military establishment needed more machines and more fliers. The demand simply was for number rather than quality. We can conceive of a situation where the former without the latter might prove as much of a liability as an asset. It is evident from his report that the chief of the bureau of aeronautics is striving for both and accomplishing splendidly.

"Thieves" and "Joy-Riders."

We noted a statement in our news columns, a day or two ago, that it was the belief of the police that the cars of two local motorists "might have been taken by thieves instead of joy-riders," as neither car had been recovered.

We take it that the police intention was to express their belief that the two cars in question had been stolen by parties who planned to retain them or dispose of them to their own profit rather than by parties whose intentions were to use the cars for a time for joy-riding purposes and later abandon them where they might be picked up by their owners or the police.

We get the idea of the police, but we are frank to say that we do not get their finely-drawn distinction between thieves and joy-riders who steal a car in which to do their joy-riding. We may be mistaken, but we do not believe that the law makes any such distinction in connection with automobile stealing.

In the old days, when horse-stealing became so common that bands of vigilantes were organized throughout the Middle West and West they were not clever about drawing distinctions such as this to which reference has been made. When the vigilantes found a man making away with another man's horse, they strung him up. Their method was a bit crude, it is true, but there is no getting away from the fact that it proved very effective.

We have softened down somewhat since those times, and it's hardly probable that automobile-stealing will ever bring the penalty that horse-stealing did, but if the police authorities of the land do not hit upon some plan for combatting automobile-stealing; if the stealing of automobiles grows proportionally in the next five years to what it has in the five years past, it would not surprise us in the least to see motorists organized in much the same manner as were the vigilantes of old, and if that time ever comes the so-called joy-rider, who steals a car for his own pleasure or convenience and takes the chance of damaging it or getting it broken up, will not be given the manifest consideration by the courts and police authorities he seemingly receives now.

But no matter what the future has in store in this regard, we feel that considerable improvement would result in the present situation, and that such joy-riding as that of which we have spoken would be greatly reduced, were the authorities to get away from the mental attitude, which apparently is theirs, which causes them to make a distinction between thieves and joy-riders such as mentioned, seemingly holding that taking the car of another for joy-riding purposes is a trivial offense—an attitude which seems to obtain among police authorities the land over.

Air, Light and Food.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Sometimes we get discouraged. In spite of everything we do there may be sickness in the family. Some days we feel weak and unable to work.

But the fact is, real progress is being made in the control and wiping out of disease. In tuberculosis, for instance, we have an example of the forward march of good health. Science has every reason to be encouraged because of what has been accomplished in lowering the death rate from this dread disease.

Forty years ago in New York City forty persons out of every 10,000 of the population died from tuberculosis. It does not exceed one quarter of that today.

Thousands of persons are alive and well who would have died of this disease a generation ago. Indeed, in the control of tuberculosis medicine has its most encouraging record.

To most of us this disease is known as "T. B." This is derived from the name of the germ responsible for tuberculosis, the "tubercle bacillus."

There can be no real tuberculosis in the absence of the germ. There may be suspicious symptoms and the fear of infection, but without the T. B. germ there is no tuberculosis.

Germs are like the seeds of plants. Unless there is a favorable soil the germs can not take root, certainly they can not thrive.

To give the T. B. germ its devastating opportunity, the way must be prepared. Run down health is the underlying cause in most cases.

What causes the health to decline? Loss of sleep and excessive fatigue—perhaps they come first. That is, habitual loss of sleep and almost daily overwork—to be worn out all the time—these are the conditions which lead to disaster.

Undernourishment from lack of food, or a weakened body from the ating of wrong foods, is another cause for a decline in health. This prepares the way for infection with the germ of tuberculosis.

Bad housing is another factor which must be regarded as one of the most serious. Poorly-ventilated, sunless, dusty houses are breeding places for these germs. Fresh air and bright sunshine are death to them. A person can ill afford to live in the wrong sort of home.

Whenever I see a white-faced, pale-lipped, narrow-shouldered, hollow-chested young girl, I begin to worry about her at once. Deep-breathing, walks in the bright sunshine, nourishing food, an abundence of sleep in a well-ventilated room—these are essential to her escape from infection.

There is no mystery about the way to escape tuberculosis. It consists in leading the simple life, eating simple foods, living close to Nature.

The things which everybody should do every day in order to have good health, are the very things and the only things you need to do to escape tuberculosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. R. Q—What is the cause of a red nose in a girl in her early teens? What will relieve the condition?

A—Indigestion, poor circulation, poor elimination are all causes. Watch the diet and keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A. G. Q—Of what value are the following: coffee, cocoa, ovaltine and grape juice? What would be advisable in the case of a weak acid stomach?

A—Coffee is a stimulant and if taken in moderate quantity should not prove harmful. Cocoa is rich in fat and oil, while grape juice contains glucose or sugar. Ovaltine is taken as a general tonic and builder. A well-balanced diet, avoiding excessive sweets and acid-producing foods should be suitable. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A—No, not unless he is unable to keep pure cow's milk on his stomach.

2—About twenty-five pounds.

3—Yes

Editorial Comment.

THE RED LIGHT OF FREEDOM.

There is sound sense in the protest of Dr. Knight Dunlap, psychologist of Johns Hopkins university, about the use of too many red lights. In the most important use of red lights, that as traffic signals, the color means stop or danger. It is desirable, Dr. Dunlap points out, that the response to this signal should be an instant, automatic stop by every one.

Drivers should not need to think about it at all any more than the average person has to think out the necessary motions of swallowing after a drink of water is poured into his mouth. There are stories of old soldiers who instantly drop all the packages in their arms when some one shouts "Attention!" and there was sound psychology back of the famous remark of David Harum that half the rich, canal-trained New Yorkers of four or five decades ago would duck automatically if some one called "Low bridge!" In this mechanicalized age it grows ever more necessary, Dr. Dunlap urges, that the response of every one to the flash of a red light should be equally automatic and quick.

This is not so now and is not likely to be so unless we mend our ways, Dr. Dunlap says. We use red lights for too many other things. Even mere danger, requiring caution but not the imperative stop, should not be granted the badge of red. Lanterns beside excavations or atop of obstructions should have some other hue, so that they will serve as warnings without weakening the upbuilding of that instant-stop habit which it is desirable that red imply. Use of red lights for advertising purposes or as indications of exits or alarm boxes or as mere attention-callers in the scores of other ways that they are now used is still more reprehensible. If all mankind is to acquire an automatic ability to come to a full stop at this crimson signal the signal must never be used for anything else.

One detrimental effect of the fact that man prides himself on being able to think is that he sometimes tries to think too much. There are many operations of life better removed from the realm of thinking and turned over to pure automatism, as instinctive as the actions of insects. Walking is already such an automatic act; piano playing and typewriting are others. No musician or typist gets far by stopping to think out the motions necessary to strike the next key. To make similarly automatic our reactions to the signals necessary for communal life, as Dr. Dunlap suggests for the red traffic light, may seem too slavish for spirited individuals to endure, but it is not. It would be merely another step in getting rid of the mental details necessary to daily living, freeing the mind for something more interesting and more worthwhile.—New York Herald Tribune.

PEACE ALONG THE RHINE.

Despatches from abroad report growing good feeling between France and Germany. M. Briand, the French foreign minister, is said to be pressing the German foreign minister, Herr Stresemann, to visit Paris. Germany sided with France in the recent controversy with Italy. The forthcoming elections in Germany and France, if favorable to Briand and Stresemann, are expected to lead to the drafting of a treaty which may go far toward bringing about a reconciliation.

The mutual distrust and dislike of Germany and France had a substantial basis in reality before the last war. Some of the basis for trouble remains. Alsace and Lorraine are still a cause for contention. It was only a few days ago that a deputy from the restored provinces, who spoke French with difficulty, rose in the French chamber of deputies to accuse the new administration of bad faith. Chancellor Marx even more recently upbraided the allies for maintaining powerful armies in the occupied regions at heavy cost to Germany in money and pride. On the other side of the ledger is the cooperation of French and German steel producers, which has robbed the transfer of Lorraine from German to French control of much of its potentiality for trouble. There is also the hope that the reduction of the army of occupation, if not its entire withdrawal, will be effected before long.

A frontier can be a trouble maker, but it need not be. There are many frontiers which do not breed wars. The world has come to think that bitterness between France and Germany is as inevitable as their common border, wherever the line may be drawn. We are inclined to believe that the extent of the ill feeling can be exaggerated. If the resources of the border provinces are made fairly available to both countries the principal cause of contention disappears. Frenchmen and Germans need not quarrel without end over the grievances of their grandfathers. In this country the Ohio river frontier made a war and divided the nation for generations, but it is no longer a trouble maker. We have succeeded in burying the quarrel with the grandfathers. Admittedly the Franco-German frontier presents difficulties which ought not be ignored, but they are not as great as habitual thinking has led many to believe.—Chicago Tribune.

Digging in Santa Cruz island, off the California coast, explorers find indications that a civilized and cultured race lived there in prehistoric times. Among the findings is furniture made of whalebone, household utensils, and delicate ornaments. This increases the wonder that he has not learned more about himself—how he came to be what he is and where he is going.

Vagrant Verse.

THE LOST CARAVAN.

Oh, long ago 'twas a joyous sight
When the Gypsies would come to town,
And the heart leaped up at the very thought
Of the caravan slowing down.

And pleasant it was to catch the talk
Of that colorful, motley crew,
Of care-free days and fire-lit nights
On the long dim trails they knew.

Till the vagabond in every boy
Awoke at the nomad call,
And the spell of the scarlet caravan
Was the strongest lure of all.

Was it only the old mirage of youth
Or the Romany minstrelsy?
But something passed with the caravan
That will never come back to me.

And now it's a dusty touring car,
With baggage of dingy brown,
And a greasy hound on the running board,
When the Gypsies come to town.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 17—One of the latest to break out in a righteous rash of indignation at the effeminization of man in New York is the rugged historian, Theodore Dreiser. He has watched with his customary sulking indifference the change, then exploded.

New York, he growls, has become a city of "pretty men." While his conclusion is overdone slightly, there is some truth to his lament. Every Fifth avenue stroller has been accustomed to those pathological horrors who powder and rouge their faces and walk "that way."

And it has become a matter of police record that a certain chain of restaurants cater shamefully to a collection of male beauties. New York has reached the same state of indifference to these lollipops as Paris and Vienna. They are often accepted in higher circles of society.

People discuss them as casually as the ordinary topic of current events and evrey musical comedy has its "Whoops" comedian who essays his insinuating smirks with mincing steps. Several beauty parlors have a steady male patronage and one caters only to men.

In smart tea places there is always a sprinkling of marceled hybrids wearing slave bracelets. Thousands of other men, not of this ilk, in New York attempt a fastidiousness never known before. They spend hours brushing their hair back in classic waves.

Their coats have a waspish flair. And they achieve delicate tintings in sartorial ensemble—neckties, shirts and sox blending into an aesthetic wholeness. Cosmetic parlors sell them all sorts of cleansing creams and complexion beautifiers.

Barber shops are equipped with electrical contrivances to aid the vanity of man. Women write to newspapers complaining they can never adjust their toilet before slot mcahine mirrors in subway stations. They are always occupied by men.

This cigaret aiding the voice foolishness reaches its apex in the recently formed "The Tobacco Society for Voice Culture"—a ridiculous burlesque organization. It has even been incorporated. Every smoker knows that his throat and general health are better off without smoking. As a smoker I have proved it many times by stopping the habit. So has every other smoker.

In concentrating so earnestly on the harmless effects of cigarets on the throat, tobacco manufacturers are making the sensible think more damage is done by smoking than they realize. Smoking is a pleasant habit and with some does little harm, but with others the damage is great and lasting.

Such amusing propaganda as this put out by "The Tobacco Society for Voice Culture" will help give the whole idea the laugh it needs. I quote from its letter-head:

Our Aim—"So to improve the chords of the throat through cigaret smoking that the public will be able to express itself in songs of praise or more easily to swallow anything."

Our Ultimate Goal: "A smoking teacher for every singer."

She was driving and had violated several traffic rules. A traffic Mussolini waved her to the curb and let her have both barrels. As they drove away she turned to her timid husband and said: "Why didn't you say something?" He replied: "He told you what I have been wanting to tell you for twenty years, but never had the nerve."—Copyright, 1927.

The world's youngest deep-sea diver is believed to be fifteen-year-old George Knight, of Brighton, England, who descends in gear weighing 212 pounds.

Haverhill, Massachusetts, has 300 of her boys in active service in the United States navy, a record believed to be unequalled by any city of its size in the country.

In the older parts of Montenegro the head of the family and his shepherd boy still follow the quaint old custom of lighting the animals to their stalls on Christmas Eve.

The baby daughter who recently arrived in the Imperial Japanese household was immediately presented with a silk garment as a luck-bringer. If the child had been a boy the first gift would have been a sword.

A London bootmaker uses X-rays to ensure that boots or shoes correctly fit a customer's foot. The apparatus is fitted under an ordinary foot-rest, and the salesman can trace the pattern and shape of the customer's foot through the boot.

At the Old Bailey, in London, the world's most famous criminal court, there is a strange rule that a judge can not sit unless there is at least one other judge on the premises. The latter may not have any cases to hear, but he must be in the building.

There are three Christmas islands, not one of which is a desirable place to live in. One, in the East Indies, is covered with guano, another lies off the icebound coast of Cape Breton, and the third is a forest-fringed unhealthy island in the Indian ocean, with only forty inhabitants.

A feature of the Christmas Eve supper in Sweden is a rice pudding filled with raisins and containing a solitary plum, said to bring good fortune to whoever draws it in his portion. A common custom is to demand an improvised rhyme from each member of the family before he may sample the pudding.

ANOTHER MARION LADY INDORSING THE NEW KONJOLA

Ended the Dreadful Neuritis Pains She Was Suffering

Reports are now being received from all parts of Marion, in which men and women are describing the wonderful relief this celebrated Konjola medicine has given them in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders or rheumatism and neuritis. Just a few days ago, Mrs. Emma McNeal, well known Marion lady, living at 322 Uncapher Ave., this city, made the following remarkable statement to the Konjola Man who is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 S. Main St., Marion, where he is meeting large crowds in person every day and explaining this surprising new compound.

"Konjola has helped me a great deal more than I ever expected of any medicine," said Mrs. McNeal. "It built up my health in general and at the same time it relieved the awful neuritis pains which I had been suffering for years.

"I was having a terrible time with my nerves and I couldn't find a medicine to help me. But the worst thing about my case was the dreadful neuritis pains which affected my arms and limbs. My muscles seemed to jerk and twist, and I often felt like every nerve in my body was on edge. I couldn't sleep, and I know I was suffering worse agonies than I could describe in writing. Both day and night I was in misery.

"I couldn't find anything that would really end my trouble, and I didn't know what to do next. Then I heard about Konjola and what it was doing for Marion people, so I went to the Konjola Man and I got this medicine and started taking it right away. I noticed a difference almost at once, and I continued with Konjola until now I can hardly realize that I ever had a sick day in my life, and the wonderful relief I got from that awful neuritis is the greatest blessing of all. I can sleep a whole night without one single pain. I always feel good in the mornings, and seem to have more life and energy than I ever noticed in myself before.

"After all the great good Konjola has done for me I can recommend it to everyone."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now being sold by all of the good druggists in every nearby town of this whole section.—Adv.

Tiny Shopper
Yuletide Trade
Santa Told

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

IF you are one of the hard-boiled gentry who thinks there isn't such a thing as getting a thrill out of Christmas borrow somebody's youngster and spend an afternoon doing the town. I mean it when I say borrow a youngster for it's a safe bet if there were anywhere from one to a half dozen in the family you'd have the spirit whether you wanted it or not. Myself, with one or two other window shoppers got a real kick out of a youngster of kindergarten age gazing into a show window at a figure of his own size all dolled up in a cowboy outfit, chaps 'n everything. He never took a good breath for about ten minutes and his eyes were as big as saucers. I hope Santa puts one in his sock for Christmas.

AND have you observed the male of the species on their round of Yuletide buying? If friend husband returns to the family fireside and never so much as kicks the cat because supper isn't ready just put it down in your little ledger that he has been doing his Christmas shopping. He's had a sample of what the hand that rocks the cradle has to do annually. They approach the first counter with fear and trembling and a certain amount of shyness but by the time they have negotiated the store from top to cellar they have the unadulterated nerve of a seasoned shopper and you stand a chance of turning into a pillar of ice if you so much as jostle the arm that holds the china seagull or the exact copy of the Arch of Triumph.

YOU don't hand the younger generation much in this day and age and there are some who even tell Santa Claus where to get off. The telephone in a local store where Santa Claus makes his headquarters for a short time each day, rang one day this week and the voice of one only a few years out of swaddling clothes asked for the good old man. He wasn't there so the proprietor took it upon himself to act as his proxy and keep up his end of the conversation. After the preliminary introductions the youngster began reciting her litany of wants and the temporary Santa proceeded to put a few questions for himself. Questions as to where the little girl lived and how to get there were answered with zest, but the response as to whether she had been a good little girl was somewhat slow in coming. Seeing a chance to do a little good work by way of disciplining, the acting dispenser of goodies announced that if she hadn't been a good girl he didn't see how he could bring all she had asked for. "All right, I don't care," and the sound of a receiver going on the hook was what he got in reply instead of the expected outburst of tearful promises.

The Story of a Girl Who Tried To Cheat Love

BY GILBERT ROGERS

CHAPTER XX

…ll leather screen guarded the dark corner where Sally crouched. Why be hidden, she asked herself fiercely. It was like lying to Jerry—she'd tell—tell him sometime when he'd understand. Only now she mustn't be discovered—for now it would look like it indeed.

What a mess she had made of things! Sitting here, like this, with the wild idea of persuading Adrian Martin to do something for Jerry. She could hear their voices, low-pitched, scarcely audible across the distance of the long room.

"South America . . . the mine . . . Charles says . . . the man's crazy . . . you'd better see him at once . . ." Phrases and bits of phrases now and then reached her ears, as Martin raised his voice, or Jerry spoke more clearly. "Then I'll go down again—right away." It was Jerry's voice. "Only I've got to have a better contract this time." "Suppose you handle the situation then. We'll talk about contracts afterwards."

A pause. "All right. Six months—I'll settle it in six months." Then a long silence, broken only by the sound of footsteps as if someone were walking up and down thinking. The footsteps came nearer, receded, came nearer again.

Sally held her breath, lowered her head, as Jerry passed in front of the screen, his hands in his pockets, thinking hard. He turned on his heel, stopped, looked . . . There was a horrible second.

Not a word from him, yet the air held his accusation, his stare of bitter astonishment. With a little shiver, Sally rose and walked out.

She met his eyes. "I—I—" she began. But she could not go on, could not face that terrible, blazing look. She stood helplessly. Adrian Martin, in a deep wing chair, glanced on with eyes of cynical amusement.

"Tell him," she begged, "please tell him . . ."

But Jerry made one angry movement. "Sorry to have walked in on you at this moment!" he said harshly. "Wouldn't have taken up your time. Good night."

She tried to call to him, tried to halt him, but her voice had deserted her. She stood there, sick and despairing, hearing the outer door close on its massive hinges like the knell of her fate.

"Jerry," she was trying to say to him, "Jerry, I only wanted to help you, to do something for you . . ." But those were unspoken words, and he was not there had she been able to say them. Sally's dismay rose in sudden fury against Adrian Martin, who could sit there and smile, smile with keen relish at her distress.

"Oh I—I loathe you!" she exclaimed. "You don't know what you've done. I—I tell you . . ."

Hysteria—it trembled to the surface. And a look of intense annoyance crossed Martin's face. He rose slowly. There was a suggestion of power about the way he moved, a look dark and sinister in his eyes, so that the words died in her. A man who was capable of anything—she knew that now. Under his sleepy pretense there lurked something frightening and ruthless, as Carlotta had hinted.

But his voice was as quiet a ever. "I rather think the place for you is home. You'll find my chauffeur outside.

She caught up her evening cape and sped past him. She was scarcely conscious of stepping into the car, rolling up to Mrs. Brooke's driveway. She only knew that as she lay in bed at last she could not sleep.

Over and over she argued, pleaded, explained to Jerry, lying there, wide-eyed, in the darkness. He had been cruel, unfair not to trust her! And yet he didn't understand. How could she really blame him? To be found hiding, alone at night in Adrian Martin's house—oh, it wasn't going to be easy to explain the mood in which she had done that! But she would explain, she would convince him. Tomorrow when he called up . . . Because, of course, he would call up. She would see him, tell him the truth. If he loved her, he'd believe her. She could tell if he loved her now. But why had it happened anyway?

The next day Mrs. Brooke was chattering away about the dance, discussing her adventures . . . "Robert Bradon flirted with me . . . old fool . . . can't stand him . . . you did go home early . . ."

But Sally hardly heard. She was listening for something else, for the tinkle of the 'phone, Jerry's voice . . . The 'phone rang again and again . . . bridge dates . . . gossip . . . messages for Carlotta. Not a word from Jerry.

Sally grew silent and scared. She felt too miserable to cry. Wouldn't he call up at all? Wouldn't he even try to see her?

Night came. She couldn't stand just doing nothing, nothing. She went for a walk, strolled past Mrs. Farrington's house, with its lights, its look of activity. Then past it again. Perhaps Jerry had 'phoned while she was out. She hurried home again. No, no one had called. "Quite sure?" "Yes, perfectly sure."

She told Carlotta she had a headache, went up and lay down. Did he expect her to call him up? Perhaps she should. Perhaps she should have done that in the first place! But no, she wouldn't call him up. She'd write him a little letter—a formal little letter that would save her pride.

"My dear Jerry . . ." Four, five, six sheets, all different, all scrawled and smudged, all ending in the scrap-basket. He didn't love her, what was the use, he didn' love her! She flung herself down on the bed, sobbing, with hard sobs that hurt and shook her.

She'd forget him. No use making yourself miserable all your life on account of a man who didn't care for you the least bit . . . Oh, why had she ever been born?

She felt she was someone different in the morning, someone with her face, her voice, her gestures, but feeling oddly different. "I shan't ever love again . . . I never could love again—I guess nothing matters."

She felt despondent but she did not struggle any longer. She had fought it all out. She would forget Jerry, she would try to forget him.

Mrs. Brooke had an errand or two in the town. "Let me. I'd like the walk," Sally said.

She started out with no hat on her dark hair, and a pale green sweater around her shoulders. She sauntered into the square, down towards the main street. The station was in view, a little crowd of figures thronged the platform. Then something ran through her like an electric shock. Jerry—it was Jerry standing there! He was leaving! He was going away! She would never see him any more!

But she knew that, she knew that already! Why was she trembling so? Then the whistle of the approaching train sounded, and all at once without thinking, she went flying down the street, careless of what she looked like, running as if her life depended upon it.

He was climbing the steps. She stumbled up after him.

"Jerry. Jerry!"

He turned to look into her white, anguished face.

The train gave a lurch and started on its way with Sally on board.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

The Kind of Women Men Hate

VERILY, my Daughter, there be Seven Types of Good Women, that every man hateth with all his heart.

For, lo, a woman may be burglarette, a gold-digger, a snob or a murderess, and men be unable to resist her charm or to cease from loving her.

And, peradventure, she may be an angel at heart and a vision of beauty, yet every man will flee at sight of her, crying "Help, help!"

Go to. What man doth not take heels at the approach of the Marathon Talker? What man doth not dodge the Babbling Brook, who taketh the words out of his mouth, and holdeth the floor, without stopping for breath?

For a dumb-bell may not be stimulating; but a Perpetual CONVERSATIONALIST is a deadly thing! She shattereth the nerves!

What man doth not seek to escape from the Sensitive Soul, who taketh offense without reason and bursteth into tears without provocation? Alas, she is as a sore finger which is always being "hurt"! She is more depressing than rain upon Christmas Day.

What man doth not flee from the presence of the Nagger who tormenteth him with admonitions and repetitions? She is as a window that rattleth throughout the night, a riveting machine that shattereth the ears by day!

What man will abide long in the company of the Little Reformer, who showeth him the folly of all his ways? Who yearneth to "uplift" him, and to rob him of all his pet weakness? Go to. For a little while, he may account her a blessing; but in time, she becometh a dispensation.

What man doth not take to flight, at sight of the Adhesive Plaster, who clutcheth and clingeth and cannot be shaken off? Who SMOTHERETH him with attentions and flattery and coddlings and pursueth him with telephone calls?

Verily, she is as a second order of plum pudding after a full meal. She choketh and sickeneth him.

What man can endure the Female Ideologue? The Iron-willed Woman, who seeketh to order all his ways and to prescribe all his judgments? Who electeth herself the guardian of his diet, the censor of his clothes, the ruler of his house, and the master of his fate? For no man delighteth to be a comic-opera husband!

Lastly, my Daughter, WHAT man doth not flee in terror from a Man-Chaser, who painteth her face as with grease-paint, and hunteth boldly with the blowing of horns and the beating of drums? She affrighteth the game!

Then, I charge thee, for thy soul's good, my Daughter, be not one of the Seven Deadly Women, whom all men hate!

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

Today was Saturday. I have not caught the Lost Bag of Tripe yet. He thought I would try so hard to work the plunger in my new squirt-gun that I would maybe sprinkle the bunch and git in a fight. And if he could only get all of us to fighting he wouldn't care which one of us got licked. I fooled him.

When I had let Jubilee down I went to the barn to milk the cows, but he didn't show up. My mother asted me what I had up my sleeve this morning, when I came in to strain the milk, and I told her nothing. Then she began to laugh. She said she never saw anything so funny looking as my father with the black oil dripping off his eyebrows and nose, and said he was still so slippery last night that he kept sliding out of bed. My father don't like to be joshed and he got as red as Annabelle Lee does when my mother spanks her, but he couldn't say anything, for the joke was on him.

I got to thinking last night about my other dollar, and the bunch is right about it being their money, but I couldn't figure it all out. They helped earn it by selling papers, but I helped sell too, and I helped in all the fights we had, and if I had not of had a dollar to start them off with they could not have made anything, so I ought to have my share for helping sell, and I ought to have something for using my dollar. But I made up my mind to give it all to them and not to take any of it for myself. But we didn't know how to give each one the right amount so we got a dollar's worth of brown bread and weenies and horseradish, and we made a fire and found an old tin can that would hold water, and we boiled the weenies and I had swiped our bread knife and we made sandwiches with weenies and horseradish and there was enough for all of us and the dogs to eat, and Younis said she had never eat a sandwich that tasted so good. I told her I would spend my other dollar and get her some more if she wanted me to, but she said I had better save it because I might want to get married sometime. And she wasn't joking, but I thought the bunch would holler their heads off, and they even started the dogs to barking.

Younis is offal easy to look at when she gets her fur collar buttoned up tight around her neck, but she ought to be careful what she says before folks. Feeble made her eyes crosseyed and took hold of my hand and shook it, and said, "Goodbye Thomas Aristides. You haven't got as much chance as a rabbit. She's made up her mind to have you and you might as well stop struggling." I hit her in the face with a handful of snow and she sot down. So then we all went slaying and had a good time.

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

THE BEACH PICNIC

AT Lillian's suggestion that Mr. Veritzen ask me what kind of "party" he should "sling" for her, my employer, turned toward me as if involuntarily, and I promptly seized the cue which Lillian had asked me to take when it should be offered.

"Please be ready to play the ingenue when I give you the cue," Lillian said, and according to her instructions, I looked up at Philip Veritzen with a look as ingenuous and deferential as I could manage and murmured:

"Did you ever go to a beach picnic, Mr. Veritzen, and eat a pirate steak?"

Lillian jumped to her feet with a fine show of enthusiasm and struck her hands together.

"You've hit it, Madge. I knew you would. And why you haven't thought of it before when I've been dying of ennui all this time, Allah knows."

It was difficult to keep my face straight at this reproof, for Lillian does not care particularly for beach picnics if she has to do any of the work involved. And as with the sportsmanship she always insists upon doing her share when she is attending one, I never have known her to display any enthusiasm for the outings which are favorites of the rest of us.

"It sounds attractive," Mr. Veritzen commented cautiously.

"It 's the last feather on Gabriel's pinion. I'll radio Seattle and points east," Lillian declared. "But Madge doesn't say it right, she's such a darn fop over her English. You don't go 'to' a beach picnic. You go 'on' one. Then you're sure you have the right thing. Phil, I envy you if you've never been 'on' one and eaten a 'pirate steak.'"

"It evidently is something which should be preceded by a marine band," Mr. Veritzen smiled. "But please enlighten my ignorance. Tell me what it is, and what I am to do about it."

Lillian sat down in the nearest chair and looked at him speculatively.

"No," she said at last; "it would be too bad to spoil it for you until the day. I'll tell you a scheme. You make out your list of guests and tell them we're going down to the beach for all day whichever time you select. Then you interview Katie, that priceless adjunct of Madge's menage—don't you love that? I got it from a really truly magazine article the other day—ask her how much money she needs for a bang-up beach picnic for so many, with a pirate steak and all the frills, give her all the money she asks for and then some—shut up! Madge, I'm doing this—and then all you have to do is to provide transportation for your guests to the beach—which ought not to be difficult, as we all have our own cars—I gather that you're not going outside the neighborhood for your invitation list."

"But," Mr. Veritzen expostulated, "this doesn't give me any trouble at all, instead it puts it all upon the shoulders of—"

"Of Katie," Lillian interrupted, "whose idea of the seventh Heaven is a beach picnic which she is engineering. Only, of course, you know your invitation list must include every one in this house. When the Grahams picnic, nobody stays at home, and Katie has no dishwashing—I think she canonizes whoever invented paper plates and cups. If that's all you're thinking of, Phil, you might as well bow and thank me gracefully for my brilliant solution of your problem."

"But, Mrs. Graham," he began, his eyes troubled, and I struck in promptly.

"Please believe what Lillian tells you," I said. "Katie will be enraptured at the idea."

"So be it, then," he said, with a relieved sigh. "Now for the guests. That is quickly decided. All your household, myself, and—" he hesitated perceptibly—"my son, Miss Lincoln and Mr. Jackson."

His glance added, "if you do not object," and I hastened a conventionally phrased approval of his list. But I wondered if his hesitation meant that he was reluctant to include the last three in our proposed outing.

Building of New Bridge Across Olentangy River Near Stratford Is Planned

Improvement Designed To Eliminate Dangerous Curves Scheduled for Next Year; New Structure Will Parallel C., D. & M. Trestle

Plans for construction of a new bridge across the Olentangy River at Stratford, south of Delaware, and for elimination of the dangerous curves in the roadway at that point have been agreed upon by officials of the state highway department and the commissioners of Delaware County, it was announced today.

The improvement is scheduled for next year, according to plans outlined in the announcement. The new bridge will cross the river at an angle parallel with the railway bridge over which the C., D. & M. interurban cars pass.

The present highway bridge spans the river in a direct east and west line, with the roadway making right angle turns at both sides. The arrangement is regarded as one of the most serious menaces to traffic safety in this section of the state.

Will Lessen Risk

In addition to eliminating the sharp curves, the improvement agreed upon will lessen traffic risks by adding 10 feet to the width of the bridge driveway. The present bridge has a driveway only 20 feet wide while the one replacing it will measure 30 feet.

Under terms of the agreement the state is to pay 65 per cent of the cost and the county 35 per cent. The present Stratford bridge is to be moved to Galena, where it will be divided to replace two covered bridges over the Big Walnut creek, both having been condemned.

The state and Delaware County officials have also effected an agreement for lengthening the Olentangy river bridge on E. Williams-st, Delaware.

MONEY PLENTIFUL, FARMING IMPROVES

Bankers See Automobile Industry "Coming Back," Employment Increasing

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor.

New York, Dec. 17—The credit and banking structure of the United States is sound. Money is plentiful. The agricultural situation has decidedly improved, and the farmers' prospects are unusually bright. The presidential election next year may have an unsettling influence on business, particularly if it ushers in the prospect of tariff tinkering. The automobile industry will 'come back' and employment in car manufacturing ranks will increase.

The above survey of American business prospects for the new year was made for International News Service today by two of the most prominent and best known American bankers, Percy H. Johnson, president of the Chemical National Bank of New York, and Jules S. Bache, head of the banking house of J. S. Bache & Co.

Commodity prices have become firmer, and continued conservatism in business is evident, as reflected in moderate inventories, said Johnson today, as the basis for the expectation of prosperous conditions next year. The unprecedented amount of borrowing through flotation of securities will unquestionably create a further demand for labor and materials, and the enormous purchasing power of the country will stimulate consumption of goods, he declared.

Sound Government

"The presidential election in 1928 may have a somewhat unsettling influence on business," he said. "We have been blessed with four years of sound government in Washington, which has been one of the great underlying reasons why the nation has prospered and gone forward in such a splendid way."

"A reasonable amount of business activity is to be anticipated for the coming year," said Jules S. Bache. "By reasonable, I mean there will be no great shrinkage as compared with 1927. The margin of profit is likely to continue to shrink to some extent, and efficiency may be the price of success."

Bache believes that the increase of competition will be based largely on the plethora of money, and through this the investment market will continue to work toward a lower basis, ensuring an increased value for good investment securities.

Sees Influence

"The automobile business is likely to be more active than during 1927," said Bache, "but competition in this line will be intense, and the margin of profit will equally continue to shrink; but the turnover will be very large, leading to considerable increase in employment, in that line at least."

Bache expressed the opinion that the presidential campaign will exercise an important influence over business developments next year.

NEWS OF MOVIES IN CINEMA CAPITAL

Play Movie "Nanette"

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Star Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17—There is bound to be great rivalry on the First National lot when it becomes known that "No, No, Nanette," one of last season's most popular musical comedies, has been purchased. If Colleen Moore were not about to fold up her tent and depart for another studio I should say she would be the choice for Nanette. But Colleen is leaving F. N. in June.

Now, let's look over the stars and see who is another good bet. Wait a moment. I have the very girl and the one that will in all probability be starred in "No, No, Nanette." I mean Dorothy Mackaill. You will agree with me that Dorothy, who is a finished comedienne, will do right by the company and the public.

Likewise, I hear tell Jack Mulhall will be co-starred with her. Taylor Holmes, who created the role on the stage here in Los Angeles, co-starred with Nancy Welford. You see, there is as much chance for the male lead as for the feminine charmer.

H. H. Frazee produced "No, No, Nanette" from the book by Otto Harbach and Frank Mandel. I think we ought to give the authors a break, don't you?

RAYMOND SCHROCK this week walked into John Stahl's office and put his signature on a contract as a general supervisor of Tiffany-Stahl productions.

Mr. Schrock, former manager of production for Warner Brothers, former boss of Universal City and a pioneer scenario writer, steps into the whirlwind of Tiffany's renewed activity well equipped for the battle.

CONSIDERING the retrenchment policy planned by some of the large producing companies, Tiffany-Stahl's splash in the film puddle is food for thought. What does it mean? There isn't a star or a director that Tiffany isn't reaching out to get, providing the record of achievement is sufficiently strong to warrant negotiations.

Only Saturday, Eve Southern, whose first recognition came when she played the feminine leads in "The Gaucho," was signed on a long-term contract. Other negotiations are in the air. Let's keep our eye on John Stahl and his company and see what happens.

THE producers are human enough to like to be able to say, "I was right." That's why Jack Warner chuckled with glee when he re-signed Leila Hyams on a new five-year contract and the same day signed Myrna Loy for another term of years.

Both girls made their debut on the Warner lot and both were given their chance in the movies by this same Jack Warner.

Miss Hyams has been loaned to the Fox Company to play an important part in "The Red Dancer of Moscow," and Miss Loy also is with the Fox Company for the time being. Both girls will return to the Warner studios when Mr. and Mrs. Jack Warner return from their tour in Europe and production is resumed at Warners.

IF Jack Dempsey cares to star in four pictures, all he has to do is put his signature on a contract and Tiffany will do the rest. The offer given Mr. Dempsey is interesting in that he can make his films anytime and anywhere he chooses. He can also approve, or disapprove, the stories. What more need anyone ask?

Being the literal minded type, I supposed, of course, Tiffany-Stahl would insist that the former heavyweight champion make a prize fight drama, but I am told only one of the stories will deal with the squared ring. The other three are to be straight drama with Jack as the hero.

NO agreement has been reached, but negotiations are on and it seems likely Mr. Dempsey will spend his time for the next few months in the studio instead of doing road work and other strenuous exercise.

While Mr. Dempsey is facing the camera, the indications are that his wife, Estelle Taylor, will be doing the same, but at another studio.

She has finished "The Whip Woman" now being titled by Edwin Justus Mayer—and at the moment she is considering two other offers. Looks as if the Dempsey family will be fairly busy in 1928.

SEEING Lila Lee in a trim tailored suit and looking not a day over 18, I wondered why some of these producers on the lookout for youth and talent didn't sign her. One of them did.

Lila is now at the California studio where she is emoting in "You Can't Beat the Law."

I know it sounds like a thriller and probably is, but it does seem that the public enjoys this kind more than any other. Arthur Hoerl is mentioned as the author and Charles Hunt as the director.

Some find their pleasure in their work because that's all that's left them.

JUDGE C. L. JUSTICE GRAND LODGE PRELATE

Election to Knights of Pythias Grand Lodge Office Announced Here

Election of Judge Charles L. Justice of this city as prelate of the grand lodge of Ohio, Knights of Pythias, was announced here today following receipt of a report giving the unofficial count of ballots cast by lodges throughout the state.

The report came from the office of the grand keeper of records and seal at Bowling Green. Although the vote has not been checked officially, election of the officers named in the list is assured, it was stated.

Unopposed For Post

Justice was unopposed for the office of grand prelate. All posts are filled with exception of grand vice chancellor, this place being vacant as the result of the recent death of Edward L. Smith, Canton attorney, who was slated for the position. It is regarded as probable that Judge Justice will be advanced to the grand vice chancellorship by appointment.

Should he receive this appointment, he will occupy the second station in the grand lodge next year, placing him in line for the grand chancellorship the following year.

He is now filling the station of grand master at arms.

Other Officers

Officers in the list announced today will be installed in September, 1928. In addition to Judge Justice as grand prelate, they are James Dunn, Jr., Cleveland, grand chancellor; N. E. Kidd, Marietta, grand master at arms; O. O. Barr, Lima, grand inner guard; Glen Sparks, Mt. Vernon, grand outer guard; E. E. Corriell, Bowling Green, grand keeper of records and seal; Curtis C. Williams, Columbus and Fred Hecker, Middleport, representatives to the supreme lodge.

All grand lodge officers are chosen for a year with the exception of the grand keeper of records and seal, whose terms is three years. Mr. Corriell is the present keeper of records and seal and was re-elected by a large plurality.

It BEATS... as it Cleans

TO YOU MY HUSBAND

I'VE quite a feeling about Christmas... and so have you. You give me fine trinkets to deck me bravely—all the world may see how handsomely you provide for me. Even the quite unnecessary things.

And I, who see in myself each year a little less of the girl you married, know how futile the brightest trinket is if I cannot match its radiance with my own. For nothing can ever take the place of those things which I am losing, in household duties a little too hard, a little too greedy of my time and strength.

Youth! Sparkle! The time for play and the zest for playing—these are the things I want! Won't you give them to me?

It's a Hoover I'm asking for. Most thoughtful of men, this Christmas may it be that?

GIVE HER A HOOVER
AND YOU GIVE HER THE BEST

Just between ourselves . . . We will be glad to deliver the Model 700 Hoover for cash price of $75.00 or the Model 543 Hoover for $59.50 . . . Dusting tools $12.50 . . . Easy terms if you wish . . .

At the Cen- e shoud be plenty of room for s ambitious lay-out.

"The Love Nest"

Love Nest." This adaptation rt E. Sherwood of Ring Lard- avagely satirical short story, great artist of the movies who es his vulgarly human wife's his own ends, promises well. A r piece of casting than the selec- June Walker for "Sweetheart" couldn't be imagined. Clyde Fillmore who will play the husband with his incessant "I mean's" will certainly look the part, if that is any compliment.

"Paradise," by William J. Hurlbut, with Lillian Foster. Little is known in advance of this piece, but it is surmised that Mr. Hurlbut has followed that psycho-analytic bent which sprouted in "Bride of the Lamb" and came to fruitage in "Hidden." "Paradise" will mark Miss Foster's third—and, one hopes triumphant—attempt to come back after her smashing hit in "Conscience" some years ago.

New Hamilton Play

"Caste," by Cosmo Hamilton, author of a whole bagful of "naughty" society comedy-melodramas. I dislike the latter label, but that is the way Mr. Hamilton writes. Reginald Mason and Winifred Kingston will strive to impart the correct patrician tone to the proceedings.

"Los Angeles" (originally "A Hollywood Party") by Donald Ogden Stewart, the humorous creator of the Haddocks, and Max Marcin, veteran first-aid man to wounded manuscripts. The cast is not specified; I imagine that Mr. Stewart's satire will rule Mr. Marcin's melodramatic roost.

The other two announced openings are "Playing the Game," by Bruce Reynolds, (it is a melodrama) and "Spring Song," by one Virginia Farmer. Both are dark horses; I know nothing about them.

"Fallen Angels"

Of the productions put on view since last I wrote the most pungent (not to say smelly) is Noel Coward's "Fallen Angels", with which the Actor's Theatre is taking a holiday as a relaxation after the orotund austerities of Philip Barry's "John". It is a marshmallow stuffed with picric acid, and its vogue will depend on the number of persons in town who regard domestic scabrousness as amusing.

Coward's new comedietta—it is very slight—is by far the lightest, neatest and smuttiest of the local improprieties. In his own particular decadent idiom, he has set forth the delight of two young married women in the fact that they have shared, and will share further, the erotic attentions of a dashing Frenchman. How much that appeals to you will be conditioned by the slightly too-lip-smacking gusto of the "angels". The latter are really demi-monkeys, who never had far to drop.

The second act, devoted to scenes of growing intoxication on the part of the lecherous ladies, is awfully funny, and acted with beautiful shades of tipsy intensity by Fay Bainter and Estelle Winwood, and the direction by Mr. McClintic, is of a silken suavity.

Claiborne in "Trigger"

"Trigger", by Lulu Vollmer, author of the excellent "Sun-Up", is on display at the Little. It has the darkly glowing Claiborne Foster in it, and not much else. Miss Vollmer has let her rusticity run away with her this time. Little girls who, maternally, steal babies, coddle kittens, and throw stones at men who try to kiss them—well, maybe; but I guess not.

Arthur Hammerstein has opened his new "temple" in the shadow of the "L" with a solemn, pretentious and over-decorated specimen of operetta called "Golden Dawn". As mirthless as a nonagenarian's birthday party, the piece is loaded with florid solos and leaden lyrics, and the house which shelters it makes you recall the good, old days when the Paramount was the worst example of architectural taste in the city. Louise Hunter, the prima donna, sings well, but is stupefyingly arch.

EAGLES' BAND NAMES OFFICERS FOR 1928

George Porterfield Elected Director; J. B. Lee, Manager; John Lauer, Secretary

The Eagles' band, local musical organization representing Buckeye Aerie No. 337, Fraternal Order of Eagles, elected officers for the coming year at its weekly meeting and rehearsal held last night.

The officers are George Porterfield, director; J. B. Lee, manager and John Lauer, secretary-treasurer.

The band, which comprises 20 members, is ranked as one of the leading fraternal musical organizations of the state. In company with the Buckeye Aerie drum corps the band has represented the local Eagles organization at numerous public events in recent years.

Weekly practice sessions are now being held in preparation for the state Eagles convention and other gatherings on next year's program. The convention will probably be held in Tiffin, John Abel, state president, has announced.

One-tenth of the world is still unexplored.

ON THE Streets of Marion
WITH THE STAR STAFF

FRED W. WARNER, local attorney, decided an argument in a most decisive and emphatic manner one day this week.

It was all unintentional on his part and his automobile was slightly damaged in winding up the debate. That's where the unusual and unique part of the story comes in.

The argument, an absolutely friendly discussion was between Warner and his fellow-attorney, W. N. Harder. They were riding in Warner's Buick car when the incident occurred.

It all started in Municipal Court where a man from Morral was suing a Tennessee resident as the result of an automobile accident which occurred on the Bucyrus-pk. The Morral man sought judgment for $76 for damage to his machine, a Chevrolet sedan.

The Tennessee autoist, driving a Buick machine, was enroute to Toledo and through mistake started up the Bucyrus-rd instead of the Upper Sandusky-rd where the two meet just north of Marion. Seing his mistake he jammed on his brakes and brought his car to a sudden stop. The Morral resident, driving in the same direction, was unable to bring his car to stop and it crashed into the rear of the one from Tennessee.

Invited To Ride

The Morral man claimed that the other driver was responsible for the crash and accordingly sued for damages.

Warner was retained as attorney for the Morral resident and Harder represented the man from Tennessee.

After arguing a motion in the case, which is still pending in Municipal Court, Warner invited Harder to ride up town in his machine.

During the trip the two continued their discussion of the accident, Warner insisting, of course, that the blame rested entirely with the Tennessee man for bringing his car to a halt suddenly and without warning.

Warner explained how it must have happened and as he talked he became increasingly earnest and emphatic.

"His car had four-wheel brakes and they act like a flash," he declared. "When he saw that he was on the wrong road he jammed on his brakes and—"

There Warner's dissertation came to an abrupt and violent climax. His subconscious mind was evidently working, for as he reached this vital point in his discussion he inadvertently illustrated it by jamming on his own brakes, bringing his car to a stop.

Bang—!

A Moores & Ross dairy truck coming up from the rear crashed into Warner's car, thus funishing almost a duplicate of the collision in which the two lawyer's clients had been involved.

Warner got out, so did the truck driver, and it was found that the damage to both machines was about even up. They agreed that no one in particular was to blame and Warner continued the trip uptown without resuming his discussion.

And now it's a question of whether the incident furnished evidence for Warner or for Harder.

YOU may be up in your stuff and going over big but if you are taking your bow before an audience with children in it it might be well to check up right now. They have their own ideas and don't hesitate about voicing them. If you don't believe it stick around where kids are taking in the sights. "Pat" Murphy, foreman of The Star composing room, gave us a good giggle this morning by passing on the opinion of his little daughter of about four summers of the radio entertainers who appeared here this week.

Little Geraldine is a radio fan and knew the boys as well as any one in the audience. Up to this time they stood pretty high in her estimation but when they appeared in their clown suits for their initial appearance in the home town their batting average went cascading down, down, down.

In discussing the show with her dad at supper she opined: "Daddy, they ought to be ashamed of themselves coming out in their nighties before so many people that don't know them." And she meant it.

ARE Marion brides adverse to having their bridal countenances preserved for posterity?

According to one Marion photographer who does a rushing business "mugging" a wide variety of faces and forms, brides here have no particular yen for rushing to the studio, donning their veil and smiling sweetly while the birdie perches upon the cameraman's clicking machine.

Nor do they send for the photo man to rush out muy pronto and expose the camera to their wifes, as the newly-acquired husband stands behind his bride, his hand upon her shoulder.

This certain photographer declares that he has taken only four or five bridal pictures in the last few years and says other Marion photographers are in the same boat with him.

UNLESS one is hard-boiled and of the five-minute variety, one's thoughts at this season of the year turn to charity.

Perhaps we aid a needy family, maybe we send out a bit of candy or a toy to some children's home, or if nothing else we'll drop a copper in a Salvation Army kettle. And, at least, we think of charity.

A story of the charitable work of a Marion minister was revealed to a reporter this week.

In one section of Marion there is an aged man, bedfast from an injury. Bedfast but cheerful, getting his enjoyment out of his tobacco and occasional visits of friends.

Twice a week this old man has the unusual sensation of having his pastor, the aforesaid minister, come to his house and shave him.

It's just a little act of kindness that doesn't get shouted from the house-tops.

PYTHIANS ATTEND MEETING AT MEEKER

Marion, LaRue and Prospect Lodge Members Guests of Organization

Delegations of Pythians from Marion, LaRue and Prospect were guests, last night, of Tymochtee Lodge No. 702, Knights of Pythias at Meeker. About 25 members of Canby Lodge No. 51 and Marion Company No. 15, Uniform Rank of Marion were included among the guests.

The meeting, one of the largest held at Meeker in recent years, was a result of the county "booster" event held in LaRue, recently, when a movement for increasing Pythian activities in the county was launched.

The page and esquire ranks were conferred on a class of five candidates by Canby Lodge and the meeting closed with a social session and lunch.

Next Thursday night, Morral lodge members will visit Meeker and confer the knight rank.

Tapestries dating back to the middle of the sixteenth century and among the finest specimens of this art are to be seen in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster Abbey.

POINTED GUN AT BOY, CHARGE

George Reef Bound Over to Hardin County Grand Jury

Kenton, Dec. 17—George Reef, east of here, was bound over to the Hardin County grand jury under $500 bond by W. P. Castor, justice of the peace, on charges of pointing a loaded gun at a 13-year-old boy.

Reef was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Waldo Haudenschield following some trouble at Hempeck school house near here. Reef, it is said, was hunting near the school when he approached a group of the students. One boy is said to have tossed an apple into the air and asked Reef to shoot at it. Reef is then said to have pointed the gun at the boy.

George Hildebrand, of near Mt. Victory, pleaded not guilty to charges of possessing materials designed for the manufacture of liquor when arraigned before Probate Judge Isaac B. McElroy. His hearing date was set for December 20.

Hildebrand's arrest was made by state and county officials after a search of his place revealed a portion of an alleged still.

Dodson Bound Over

Edward Dodson, Kenton, was bound over to the Hardin County grand jury under $300 bond by Mayor H. G. Herren on charges of desertion and non-support filed by his wife.

The case of W. M. Shirk, south of here, charged with possessing intoxicating liquor, was continued Friday when the defendant was unable to appear in the court of Probate Judge Isaac B. McElroy because of illness.

A second case, that of Ova Nichols, west of here, was settled in Judge McElroy's court Friday, when Nichols paid a fine of $10 and costs on a charge of stealing tires.

Heretofore, the legal documents have been filed in small packets, but in the new system, the papers lie flat in book-like form. This will make references to cases much easier when they are referred to by attorneys. The change will take place Jan. 1, 1928.

Harding Cagers Look Ragged in Dropping Columbus Central Game, 25 To 7

Garrett is High Scorer With Only Three Points; Team Fails To Hit Basket

ure To Find a Center Capable of Leading Offensive Is Coach Compton's Biggest Handicap; Red and Black Scores Only One Field Goal During Entire Game

BY TOM BUCHANAN
Sports Editor of The Star

E Harding High School basketeers got off to a poor start on the 1927- ge season last night by dropping gsided game to Columbus Central to 7. Garrett's basket just as the quarter ended was the only field made by the Red and Black in the re game.

hough the Red and Black had ty of shots at the hoop the boys e unable to drop the ball through. stics are not at hand but it is be- ed that a 50-50 break on shots e by the Harding team would have the game easily. Even sucker shots ed with disheartening regularity.

Central Was On

n the other hand, Central players e hitting everything they threw at ng the early part of the game and he half had a luxurious lead of 11 ts. Harding had three.

he complete failure of the Harding n to make even a fair showing in game can be laid partly to two gs—inability to hit the basket and e fright. It was the first game for locals and that all he players, even who had seen service on Harding e teams before, were nervous and y throughout the first half was nly noticeable. The boys were rying their shots and were making n too long.

he Harding offense and defense were e conspicuous—by their absence. offense, however, wouldn't have ted so bad had the team been able hit the basket on even 25 per cent the tries. Harding's passes were rly executed and time after time e intercepted by Central.

he defense was probably the poorest artment of Harding's game. Central continually drawing the Harding ress out of guarding positions, leav- their forwards open for easy shots.

No Center

he Red and Black cagers will un- btedly show improvement after get- a couple more games under their s but they will never make a first s team until there is a center found, one developed, around which to build scoring attack. The forwards and rds, while by no means brilliant, w possibilities but the team is with- a center capable of leading an nsive. Not that the centers who yed last night are dub basketball yers. They perform as well, as ketball players, as the average of team, but they are not centers. her might make good forwards or rds but they are not centers. Coach mpton has been worrying about a ter all season and results last night w that he has only started to worry. s for the Columbus team, other than sessing some crack basket tossers, wasn't anything to excite even the t blase critic. The players were and rangy which gave then them a ded advantage over the Harding n but in real fast company they ldn't look so good. In two games season, one with Springfield and with Xenia, before coming here night, they had scored only 17 ts. Their defense was little better n Harding's. The Red and Black more shots at the basket than umbus and for the most part they e the kind of shots that Central ld have scored on. Few of Cen- 's shots were from under the bas- the majority of them coming from region of the foul line, or back of it. he foul shooting of both teams was . Harding scored five times out of ries from the free throw line while tral collected three points out of tries.

arrett was the only Red and Black cager to score more than one point. Gillis, Cline, McAninch and Partridge scored one point each. Plank, Central center, took scoring honors with six points.

From 0 to 2 at the end of the first quarter the score went to 14 to 3 at the half. Harding scored two points in each of the last two periods.

FINNISH A. A. BARS NURMI FROM RUNNING IN AMERICA

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—Finland has barred Paavo Nurmi from competition in this country because it thinks it has reason to believe the Paavo and G. C. Pyle, the man who preys upon the pure and innocent, were about to do a little business.

This information was imparted to the writer today by a prominent member of the Finnish-American A. C. who further stated that Nurmi had planned to come here this winter as part of a colossal invasion that was to have included Wide, the Swede, and Herr Doktar, Otto Peltzer, of Germany. The Herr Doktor, it seems, beat the gun in leaving from the other side and, with the others deterred on one pretext or another, is here at this moment steadfastly holding a large and very vacuous bag.

Planned Big Race

The climax of the visitatiton, according to my informant, was to have been a quadrangular race at one mile, featuring Peltzer, Wide, Nurmi and Lloyd Hahn, the best miler developed in America since the salad days of John Paul Jones. The race, he said, was planned for one of the biggest amateur meets of the indoor season and he insisted that it may even happen yet.

Just how the promoters of the games hoped to get A. A. U. sanction for a race, in which two of the proposed starters are prohibited from running in America, was not made clear. The Herr Doktor was told in advance by Germany that he shouldn't come. He came. Paavo received the same word from Finland and he didn't. It would appear that the sad separation is almost legal.

Pyle's entrance into the situation is supposed to have occurred when he was seized with the bright idea of persuading Nurmi to turn professional and start in the great optimist's bunion sweepstakes from coast to coast. He might have persuaded Paavo to start, at that. It would have taken Demosthenes to make him finish.

Anyhow, Finland thought it saw a chance of its great man getting away from it virtually on the eve of the Olympic games and it took the only means in its power to prevent it. It operated on him for his expense account and that generally is fatal to an amateur athlete.

Paavo Didn't Listen

It seems, however, that Finland guessed wrong on Pyle. For the word now is that Nurmi's proposed trip was inspired only by a desire to race Peltzer, WiWde and Hahn. He had listened to Pyle, they say, through an intermediary, and let it go at that.

If Finland had known how little impression Pyle's oratory had, had on Paavo, all would have been Jacob. I never heard of a professional listener losing his amateur standing.

TOD MORGAN, FOULED, KEEPS LIGHT CROWN

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—Boxing fans today had another "fair or foul" controversy to argue about in the hot stove league this winter as a result of the unfortunate wind-up of the junior lightweight title bout here last night between Tod Morgan of Seattle, the champion, and Joe Glick of this city. Glick, who had floored the champion three times and battered him from pillar to post in the first seven rounds, was disqualified in the fourteenth and next to last round when he knocked Morgan down with a low left to the groin.

Glick Was Leading

Glick was leading on points when the fight ended, but the coast battler had rallied gamely after the seventh round and had a chance to earn at least a draw. Many of the fans thought that low blows had floored Morgan in all four instances, and Glick was warned to keep his blows up although the champion's complaints were not allowed until the fourteenth round.

Dr. William Walker, the New York State Boxing commission's physician, announced that a superficial examination of Morgan after the fight revealed no traces of a foul. The champion's supporters, however, pointed out that Glick has lost several fights on fouls.

After being floored by a low right in the third frame, Morgan struggled to his feet just in time to beat the count. He was dropped twice in the fifth and was saved by the bell on the second occasion. Then the champion surprised the crowd of 10,000 by winning all except two rounds after the seventh.

Corporal Izzy Wins

In the fifteen round semi-final Corporal Izzy Schwartz of New York won the decision over Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, Iowa, and will be recognized by the New York Commission as the flyweight champion of the world. If Schwartz meets and defeats the winner of the Ernie Jarvis-Frenchy Belanger scrap at Toronto Monday night, he will also be recognized by the National Boxing Association as the successor to the title vacated by Fidel La Barba.

Schwartz shaded Brown in ten of the fifteen rounds, Piling up a winning lead in the first ten frames. The Corporal's superior speed and boxing ability earned him the verdict. Schwartz's left ear was bleeding in the late rounds and his left eye was gashed when Brown butted him, but these minor assaults counted for nothing except as thrills for the ladies.

Next May promises to be a busy time for golfers and golf followers in England. During three weeks of that month there will be held the British open championship, the women's championship and women's international team matches, and the men's amateur championship.

COUNTY CAGE TEAMS PLAY OUT OF LEAGUE

Agosta Wins from Delaware While Green Camp Loses to Cardington

Agosta won and Green Camp lost last night in Marion County high school ventures into territory outside the county.

Agosta nosed out Delaware High School by one point. The score was 29 to 28. And it was a one point margin that defeated Green Camp at Cardington, 16 to 15.

The game at Cardington was featured by close guarding and was on of the fastest played on that floor this year. Porter of Green Camp was high scorer for the losers, with four baskets. In the preliminary the Mt. Gilead second team defeated the Cardington second team, 10 to 7.

Agosta High School nosed out a victory from Delaware High School at Delaware. Campbell was high point scorer for Delaware with eight points. Hock, Champan, Kannel and Gracely each scored four points for the winners. Rush and Beckley scored eight and five points respectively for Agosta.

The game was won for Agosta when Beckley potted one from the middle of the floor with only 10 seconds to play.

In the Waldo-Pleasant games, within the county, the Waldo boys defeated the Pleasant boys 23 to 11 and the girls' team reversed the order, Pleasant winning 30 to 11.

In the boys' game Waldo scored 16 points in the first period while Pleasant was held to one. In the second quarter the losers held Waldo scoreless while they were scoring six points. The lead acquired by Waldo, however, was too great for the Pleasant team to cut down. The Waldo girls scored only four points in the last three periods of their game.

COMPLETE BOOK FOR COFFROTH HANDICAP

Nominate 109 Horses for World's Richest Stake at Tia Juana

Tia Juana, Mexico, Dec. 17—The future book on the $100,000 Coffroth Handicap, richest race in the world for horses of all ages, was announced here today by Jack P. Atkin, general manager of the Tia Juana Jockey Club, who for the last two winters has conducted a book on the race, handling upwards of $300,000 on the outcome.

A total of 109 horses have been nominated for the race, which is to be run Sunday, March 18. Mr. Atkin makes four horses equal favorites at 15 to 1. They are Display, owned by W. J. Salmon; Black Maria, owned by W. R. Coe; Cariaris, owned by W. T. Anderson, and Light Carbine, owned by I. B. Humphreys of Denver. The first two pack top weight of 127 pounds.

Seven galloppers are quoted at 20 to 1. They are Grey Lag, Handy Mandy, Herodian, Jock, Masked Marvel, Sun God II and Pompey. After these the prices range up to 200 to 1, the latter being offered against each of a dozen thoroughbreds.

These initial odds are expected to materially shift in the near future when the various owners begin to back their nominees in the book.

FRENCH COURT TEAM TO PLAY IN U. S.

Will Meet American Players in Philadelphia Dec. 23

New York, Dec. 17—The United States Lawn Tennis Association announced today that Philadelphia will be the scene of an International team tennis match on Friday, Dec. 23, with French players representing the Racing Club of Paris playing against the Penn Athletic Club.

France will be represented by Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus. The Penn Athletic Club will use on its team A. Norris Williams, 2nd, former national singles champion; Manuel Alonso, former captain of the Spanish Davis Cup team; and possibly William T. Tilden, 2nd, six times national champion of the United States.

The match will be a one day, three contest arrangement, consisting of two singles and one doubles match. The opportunity for the match arose unexpectedly due to the fact that the French team, which has been playing in South America, decided to go to Australia via the United States.

MANDELL WINS

Carries Every Round in Battle With St. Paul Slugger

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 17—Sammy Mandell today is still champion of all the lightweights, despite the best efforts of Johnny O'Donnell of St. Paul, who had his "big shot" at the title here last night. Mandell won every round. He swarmed all over the St. Paul Miller and had him just about "out" in the tenth round before the gong ended the uneven battle.

In 1888 the Washington team of the National League hit for .207, which is the lowest batting average ever recorded for a major league team for an entire season.

West Point Authorities Return Contract Unsigned; Have Played For 30 Years

Navy Demands That West Point Observe Three-Year Rule; Point Out That Harry Wilson Starred at Penn State Seven Years Ago

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—The annual Army-Navy football game, most colorful of all gridiron classics, has been lost unless the War and Navy Departments intervene. The threatened break in football relations between the two service schools became a reality today with the announcement of Major General Edwin B. Winans, superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, that he had returned unsigned to the Naval Academy the contract calling for next year's game.

Difference in Rules

The break resulted from a difference in eligibility rules. The Navy insists that no athlete be allowed to participate in varsity team competition for more than three years, and holds that football players who have played with college teams should not be eligible for the Army eleven. Navy supporters point out that Harry Wilson, for example, was allowed to play another full term at West Point after starring at Penn State seven years ago.

In returning the contract unsigned to the Navy, General Winans wrote:

"While I regret that you should feel the proposed release of the Army from the Navy contract and the threatened scheduling of another school by the Navy in Army's place in 1928 to be necessary, I wish to assure you that under the circumstances the authorities of the Military Academy will not oppose your wishes in this respect."

General Winans declares that West Point will refuse to discriminate against young men of established athletic prowess, because a good physique constitutes an asset for any prospective officer.

No appeal to War and Navy Department officials by either Academy is considered likely, but it is believed that the officials may take up the matter on their own initiative and attempt to avoid a permanent break.

Have Played 30 Years

For thirty years the Army-Navy game has been the brilliant climax of the football season. The first games, played at West Point and Annapolis, were comparatively inconspicuous, but in 1899, nine years after the first game, the scene shifted to Philadelphia. With the parades of the cadets and the midshipmen, the glittering gold braid of officers, the enormous crowds and the presence of the nation's leading dignitaries, the annual service classic became more colorful every year.

Games also were played at Princeton, New York, Baltimore and Chicago. Of the 30 contests played, 15 were won by the Army and 12 by the Navy; and three resulted in a tie score.

The games ranked with a heavyweight championship boxing bout and a baseball world series in attracting world-wide interest in sports. Naval officers and gobs in far-away Singapore and Army officers and doughboys in the Philippines followed the contests with as much interest as the fans at home.

Advance in Pennsylvania Crude Oil Prices Listed

Markets at a Glance

New York, Dec. 17—Railroad stocks, firm; industrial stocks, firm; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; grain, steady; copper, firm; oil, firm; cotton, irregular; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady; foreign exchange, steady.

New York, Dec. 17—New advances in the favorite steel, motor, copper and specialty stocks in the week end market today carried prices of active issues to the highest ranges of the month. Buying was stimulated by the comfortable position of the money markets, and the wide expansion of the Christmas retail trade. General Motors pushed forward aggressively in the first period, and high priced specialties jumped to record breaking levels. An advance in Pennsylvania crude oil prices was good news for the bulls in the oil stocks.

The response of the outside speculative centers to Friday's violent up-bidding of prices was seen in the influx of good buying orders for the leading steel and motor shares. The latter enjoyed the benefits of the advertising of the "big show" in this city in January, and the advance notices of a number of new and attractive models. Chrysler, Studebaker and General Motors led the advance here.

Though Pennsylvania crude oil prices received only a small boost of 5 cents a barrel minimum, the bulls in the oil prices received only a small boost of 5 cents a barrel minimum, the bulls in the oils hailed the advance as the first step to the firming up of the oil markets in general, with an increase in mid-continent crude not far away. Sinclair Consolidated crossed 19 in heavy trading and higher prices were quoted for Marland, Simms, Houston Pure Oil and Shell Union.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 17—Wheat rallied late in the session yesterday and prices were slightly higher at the close. Liquidation apparently had run its course in the early trade when prices were lower and the market firmed gradually on covering by shorts, due to the strength in corn. At the close December was $1.25 3-4 and May $1.30 1-4, with net gains of 1-8@3-8.

Commission houses were on both sides of the wheat market in the early trading. Low cables and small scattered selling caused prices to ease, but commission houses became fair buyers on the decline, although outside trade was not broad. Deliveries were moderate at 223,000 bu. and liquidation lost force. Shorts covered on the rally in corn, the main factor in the closing strength of wheat.

Liverpool closed ⅝@1 lower, and Buenos Aires was ¾@⅞c lower at midday. Winnipeg opened easier, but the trend was closely allied with the action of the local market and gains of ⅜@½c were registered at the close.

Corn Rallies Sharply

Corn broke sharply at the start under local pressure and considerable liquidation, but commission houses were good buyers of the May at 92c and under and the market rallied. Although there was fairly heavy selling on the bulges at stronger undertone was apparent and offerings were absorbed more easily.

Shorts covered when the market showed a tendency to hold the gains and further buying resulted on reports of export business.

Southwest reported export bids at 1c better, with May price being bid at the gulf. Although exports continue heavy from South America cables advise that seaboard stocks are disappearing rapidly.

More numerous and better foreign bids for North American corn lend color to the belief that Argentine stocks will be exhausted shortly, with several months yet to elapse before their new crop is harvested.

Deliveries of corn on December contracts lightened, with the total for the day 185,000 bu. There was an excellent demand for cash corn from all interests. Country offerings were very light with only 6,000 bu. booked to arrive, and receipts were smaller at 101 cars.

Kansas City sold No. 2 mixed corn to Gulf exporters at a price which figures 1 1-2c over Chicago December delivery at Chicago.

Oats Recover

Oats sold off at the opening with the other grains, but the market was quick to follow strength in the corn pit. Buying was somewhat scattered, but the offerings were easily absorbed. Cash trade continues good. Deliveries were 100,000 bu.

Rye was strong with limited offerings and a good demand, due to the increased activity in export circles. Some rye was reported worked for export though no figures were given and offering bidding was decidedly active. Deliveries totaled 25,000 bu. Cash rye was better with the futures.

DERANGED YOUTH IS RETURNED TO HOME

Columbus Resident Wanders Away: Found at Farm Near Here

Three men, all about 22 years of age, who had wandered from their homes in other localities while mentally deranged, have come into the custody of Sheriff James A. Deal during the last week.

The third of the trio was placed in the county jail yesterday afternoon by Deputy Vane Ireland, who found the man at the home of a farmer about five miles north of the city. He gave his name as Edward Isham and his address as 83 16th-st, Columbus.

He was taken to Columbus last night by a brother, who said that Isham disappeared several days ago and that search had been made for him since that time. Deputy Ireland took the man into custody after being notified by the farmer at whose home he had stopped.

The two other demented wanderers found during the week were Bill Willie, colored, and John Johnson. Being unable to give any information regarding their identities or place of residence, they were taken to the state hospital for treatment, yesterday.

Women Members of Congress Have Clear-Cut Ideas on Work Outlined

POLITICS is getting to be less and less of a mystery to the members of the gentler sex.

Four women are holding down seats in Congress, and they surely know what it's all about, as anyone can tell you after talking with them or watching them in action.

The newest member is Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky. This charming lady has now entirely recovered from her stage fright, and is laying out a comprehensive program that she expects to attack with characteristic vigor.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts is busy before the appropriations committee, striving to get more trade commissioners to push our exports further into the recesses of the globe. She is also working hard for the welfare of World War Veterans.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey is another who's greatly interested in the soldiers and sailors, and is trying to build a hospital for the boys in her own state. Mrs. Norton will offer 16 bills to increase the allowances of the widows of Civil War soldiers.

Mrs. Florence Kahn of California is pushing the Boulder Dam project, as well as asking for some new buildings for San Francisco. She also expects to work on the reapportionment and census bills.

You can safely wager right here and now that our quartet of lady legislators will be heard from before the present session of Congress comes to an end.

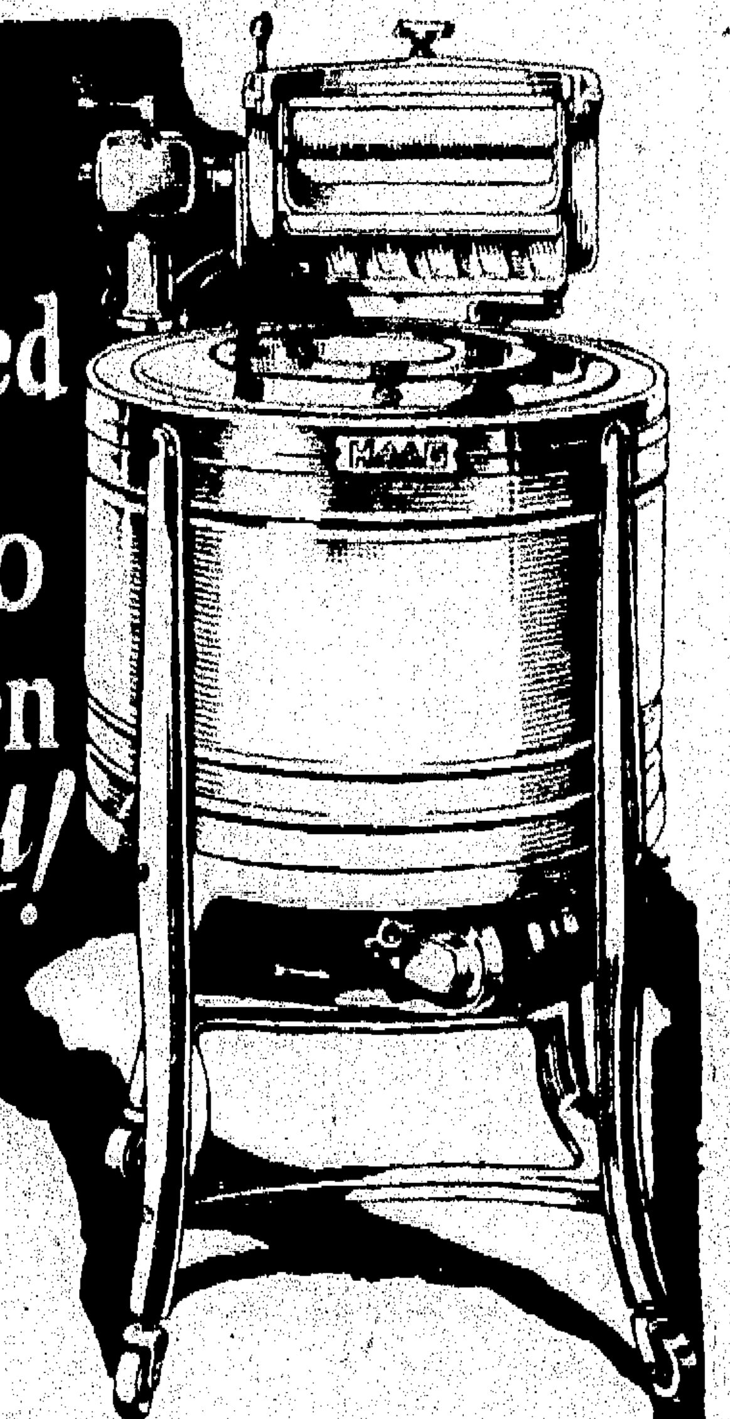
Designed by 10,000 Women for You!



We asked 10,000 women to help us design the finest washer that brains and experience could produce. They told us what they wanted in a washer—the style, the finish, the construction, the washing qualities.

The result is the perfected Haag Vortex—a marvel of efficiency and beauty. It washes clothes snow-white in 4 to 7 minutes without tearing or tangling—thanks to the patented Haag Vortex agitator.

The new double-tub construction, providing an air chamber between the stainless nickel-lined copper tub and the dent-proof galvanized outer jacket, keeps the water hotter and is a wonderful aid to washing.

Won't you let the nearest Haag dealer do your next washing free in your own home? Just phone or see him today.
